designed for living well approaching health from every side physical mental and social      Making Healthy Places Andrew L. Dannenberg, Howard Frumkin, Richard J. Jackson, 2012-09-18 The environment that we construct affects both humans and our natural world in myriad ways There is a pressing need to create healthy places and to reduce the health threats inherent in places already built However there has been little awareness of the adverse effects of what we have constructed or the positive benefits of well designed built environments This book provides a far reaching follow up to the pathbreaking Urban Sprawl and Public Health published in 2004 That book sparked a range of inquiries into the connections between constructed environments particularly cities and suburbs and the health of residents especially humans Since then numerous studies have extended and refined the book s research and reporting Making Healthy Places offers a fresh and comprehensive look at this vital subject today There is no other book with the depth breadth vision and accessibility that this book offers In addition to being of particular interest to undergraduate and graduate students in public health and urban planning it will be essential reading for public health officials planners architects landscape architects environmentalists and all those who care about the design of their communities Like a well trained doctor Making Healthy Places presents a diagnosis of and offers treatment for problems related to the built environment Drawing on the latest scientific evidence with contributions from experts in a range of fields it imparts a wealth of practical information with an emphasis on demonstrated and promising
