Student Services Susan R. Komives, Dudley B. Woodard, Jr., 2003-06-17 Since it was first published in 1980 Student Services A Handbook for the Profession has become a classic reference in the field In the fourth edition of this important resource the contributors a stellar panel of student affairs scholars examine the changing context of the student experience in higher education the evolution of the role of student affairs professionals and the philosophies ethics and theories that guide the practice of student affairs work Comprehensive in scope this book covers a broad range of relevant topics including the development of student affairs legal and ethical foundations of student affairs practice student development learning and retention theories organizational theory dynamics of campus environments strategic planning and finance information technology in student affairs managing human resources multiculturalism teaching counseling and helping skills assessment and evaluation and new lessons from research on student outcomes

Planning and Achieving Successful Student Affairs Facilities Projects Jerry Price, 2003-04-02 Here s a breakthrough sourcebook that not only argues that student affairs professionals need to assume leadership roles in campus facilities issues but also provides step by step guidelines in building a successful facility project from the first brainstorming session to the final coat of paint Editor Jerry Price dean of students at Drake University and contributors from all walks of the student affairs profession demonstrate that student affairs professionals are in a unique position of understanding the role of the campus in environment in students lives Chapters explore balancing multiple needs through innovative facility design options for financing residence hall renovation and construction and the relationship between housing programs and facilities and the institution s education mission Applicable information on assembling the project team the role of communication and ten key lessons for facilities planning renovation and building are also presented Lessons learned in the field are explored as well The UConn 2000

Initiative Case Study tells the story of one institution's success in developing and implementing a public policy initiative that would lead to billions of dollars in renewed investment in the university's core infrastructure. Student affairs professionals live with students; see how they interact with one another; hear why they picked this particular school; and listen to the reasons they are succeeding or failing. Their education and experience lie in understanding how residence halls, student unions, dining services, recreation, and wellness centers, and campus grounds each affect students' experience in different ways. This book demonstrates conclusively that the valuable expertise of student affairs professionals is therefore critical to ensuring that campus facilities projects ultimately achieve their intended goals. Understanding the Role of Academic and Student Affairs Collaboration in Creating a Successful Learning Environment Adrianna J. Kezar, Deborah J. Hirsch, Cathy Burack, 2002-03-19

The topic of collaboration between academic and student affairs is now more important than ever if colleges and universities are to create seamless learning environments and educate students for the new collaborative work context. Institutions face the challenge of showing students by their own behavior that they are committed to collaboration while still acknowledging that partnerships can be messy, that they can take more time, and that they can be frustrating. This volume examines authentic models of collaboration that will help to develop successful student leaders for the new century. It reviews the results of a national study on academic and student affairs collaborations and provides organizational models and facilitators of change, as well as examples of facilitative strategies in action. With research and actual applications in the field, this volume is a significant resource for institutions seeking to foster successful collaborative relationships between academic and student affairs. This is the 116th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Higher Education. Building a Better Bridge James Martin, Sheila Murphy, 1997*

Inquiry, 2003 Changing General Education Curriculum James L. Ratcliff, D. Kent Johnson, Jerry G. Gaff, 2004-04-07

This issue is about changing the general education curriculum in big ways through significant reforms and more frequently incremental ways to accomplish purposes better connect with students better and provide a more engaging and intellectually and emotionally compelling common collegiate experience. The chapter authors present the results of a recent national survey on changes in general education, four case studies of institutions that have undertaken change, how they did it, what the constraints were, and most important, what the results were, and discussions on achieving curricular coherence and the nature of change and how to bring it about. This is the 125th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Higher Education. Achieving and Sustaining Institutional Excellence for the First Year of College Betsy O. Barefoot, 2005-03-11

It has been documented that a student who makes a successful transition in the first year of college is more likely to persist and graduate. In recent years, efforts to improve the experience of first-year college students have greatly improved. In 2002, the Policy Center on the First Year of College, supported by The Pew Charitable Trusts, The Atlantic Philanthropies, and Lumina Foundation for Education, sponsored a project to recognize colleges and universities as Institutions of Excellence in their design and execution of the first year. Thirteen colleges and universities representing a broad spectrum of campus types were selected as exceptional institutions that place a high priority on the first year experience. Achieving and Sustaining Excellence in the First Year of College includes case studies of each of the thirteen exemplary institutions. These studies illustrate and analyze the colleges best practices in teaching, assessing, and retaining first year college students. The individual case studies offer lessons learned and have broad potential application beyond the particular type of institution represented.

Creating a Third Space Culture of Collaboration Between Academic Affairs and Student Affairs, 2016. Postsecondary Education is under increased scrutiny from key stakeholders regarding low student success rates and the relevance of a college degree. The published research and literature indicates that academic affairs and student affairs collaboration is a critical strategy to improving student learning and student success. This study aimed to contribute to the gap in the literature by proposing a research informed grounded theory to guide colleges and universities in redesigning their approach to collaboration. The study utilized a constructivist grounded theory methodology that was motivated by two primary research questions: a) What are the organizational conditions needed to create and sustain a Third Space Culture of Collaboration between academic affairs and student affairs, and b) What is the role of senior level administrators in creating and sustaining a Third Space Culture of Collaboration? Twelve senior level administrators were interviewed to gain their perspective on strategies to create optimal organizational conditions for collaboration. This study also sought to understand the role of senior level administrators in developing a culture of collaboration between academic affairs and student affairs. The research findings informed the development of the Third Space Culture of Collaboration theory, which identifies four organizational conditions needed to create a culture of collaboration: Engaged Leadership, A Renewed Commitment to Student Success, a Third Space Collaborative, and Student Informed Support. The implications of this study may offer recommendations for senior level administrators when leading institutional change towards collaboration. Additionally, the study provides considerations for government officials when drafting legislation regarding student success in higher education.

Educating Women at Ursuline College, Rosemarie Carfagna, 1998. In the early 1990s Ursuline College, a Catholic women's college in Cleveland, completely redesigned its core curriculum to maximize access, retention, and success. The findings presented in this study support the theories upon which the curriculum was designed and add a valuable contribution to the scholarship of educating women.

Collaborations for Student Success, Dallas Long, 2019-08-14. Libraries are exploring new roles and new partnerships on college campuses in order to improve students' experiences and enable learning outside the classroom. But other than faculty members who are librarians, potential partners? The student affairs professionals are responsible for everything from residence halls to service learning to career exploration and make up one of the fastest growing groups in higher education; they are the experts in student development and the student experience. However, librarians and student affairs professionals are largely unfamiliar with each other's roles in student learning. By using multiple focus groups, Long describes the experiences and perceptions of librarians and student affairs professionals at several four year residential colleges and universities He identifies ways librarians and student affairs professionals share common values and can approach partnerships successfully but also the barriers that result when these two groups don't fully understand each other's roles in student learning This book is the perfect road map for librarians and student affairs professionals alike who are seeking partners for campus collaborations

Successful Drug and Alcohol Prevention Programs Eileen V. Coughlin,1994 Alcohol and other drug abuse is antithetical to academic excellence and the values associated with higher education The recent resurgence of illicit drug use and alcohol abuse coupled with the interactions of these behaviors with other critical social issues such as AIDS sexual assault and vandalism has accelerated the need to reassess our approach to prevention Institutional liability and new federal legislation provide additional motivation to this already pressing need This volume of New Directions for Student Services details the current problems of alcohol abuse and other drug use in higher education and suggests approaches for creating a campus climate that is more conducive to successful social and academic development This is the 67th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Student Services For more information on the series please see the Journals and Periodicals page

Co-partnership ,1909
Life Association News ,1925 The Law Students' Journal John Indermaur,Charles Thwaites,1896 West Virginia, in History, Life, Literature and Industry Morris Purdy Shawkey,1928 Access to Higher Education Through Consortia Lawrence George Dotolo,Anneke J. Larrance,2007-07-09 The many different collaborative programs highlighted in this volume are innovative efficient and successful They could be duplicated by other institutions working together with the goal of enhancing access to higher education The chapter authors have years of experience in operating in a cooperative setting and their expertise has greatly improved the work of their individual consortium Working in a cooperative setting gives institutions the ability to meet the demands of access while sharing their resources This volume can serve as an effective guide to institutions seeking to widen their efforts to provide greater access This is the 138th volume of the Jossey Bass quarterly report series New Directions for Higher Education
