The Diachrony of Ditransitives Chiara Fedriani, Maria Napoli, 2020-10-26 While ample studies exist on ditransitives in various languages notably from a typological perspective more work needs to be done on identifying the main processes and factors that trigger and constrain the changes they undergo over time The goal of this volume is to help fill this gap by bringing together data and information on individual languages that have thus far been left out of the discussion and by expanding our knowledge of already studied linguistic traditions so as to achieve a broader diachronic description Since one of the distinctive features of ditransitives is their synchronic variability in terms of structural alternation and alignment split diachronic research can throw up new insights into developmental dynamics that are eminently complementary namely on the one hand the emergence development and loss of construction alternation and on the other the acquisition of new functions over time The analyses offered in the book yield different and interconnected answers to the general question of how ditransitives change by drawing on different functional principles that play a role in the diachronic reorganization of this dynamic domain and by providing a number of original theoretical suggestions

Constructions across Languages Myriam Bouveret, 2021-03-15 This cognitive contrastive study of ten languages Chinese Dalabon English French Spanish Romanian Kurdish Khmer Polish Tibetan focuses on the concept of giving from six main points of view namely argument structure lexical semantics and event structure role marking in the three argument construction and in other constructions lexicalization grammaticalization and constructionalization of the verb from a cognitive construction grammar point of view and central and extended meanings It is proposed that a continuum approach to grammar and lexicon is needed in order to describe the typological and historical facts The volume argues for a concrete and abstract transfer cluster model involving coverage of lexical and grammatical extension or bleaching phenomena and that the semantic extensions metaphorical and otherwise exploit various portions of this schema The volume is deeply anchored in the Cognitive Construction Grammar theoretical movement and proposes analyses of constructional phenomena to illustrate a grammar to lexicon continuum in synchrony and diachrony language change grammaticalization chains constructionalization analysis and an invariant hypothesis of giving as a basic activity in human cognition Constructing Families of Constructions Francisco José Ruiz de Mendoza Ibáñez, Alba Luzondo Oyón, Paula Pérez Sobrino, 2017-07-26 Within Construction Grammar this volume moves away from a compartmentalized view of constructions with the aim of providing a more holistic description of grammar Thus the book brings together analyses that look at constructional families within the construction of such languages as English Spanish German Polish Croatian and Hungarian Part 1 focuses on how different analytical perspectives may be applied to comparable and or connected constructions with a view to enhancing our understanding of their similarities differences and relations Part 2 contributes to the state of the art in Construction Grammar in three ways i by reconciling aspects of various constructionist analyses ii by determining to what extent competing constructionist perspectives can offer more adequate approaches to specific analytical needs and iii by challenging central assumptions within Construction Grammar This book is expected to encourage further research into the anatomy of constructional families and their interrelations in all domains of constructional organization A Cognitive Approach to the Semantics of the German Passive Carlee Arnett, 2004 Hopper Thompson's 1980 seminal article on transitivity brought forth renewed interest in the passive and other correlates of transitivity Langacker 1982 and others working with the Cognitive Grammar CG framework argue that the passive voice is an independent construction and that it is not a reorganization of the active voice Language specific problems for the German passive include the use of the dative case to mark certain passive participants passives formed from verbs and preposition combinations and impersonal passives This study provides a semantic analysis of all the types of passive constructions found in German and shows that these construction types are related A corpus of written data is used and the focus is on radial categories of meaning in Modern German Cognitive Linguistics Today Barbara Lewandowska-Tomaszczyk, Kamila Turewicz, 2002 This volume contains papers presented at the first international cognitive linguistics conference in Poland Cognitive Linguistics in the Year 2001 organized by the Faculty of Philology of the University of Lodz on 19-23 April 2001. A number of invited papers are also included. With this publication we intend to offer a survey of the problems taken up by Cognitive Linguistics today as well as some solutions. The leading themes are interdisciplinarity, applicability and research methodology in Cognitive Linguistics. The issue of interdisciplinarity has always been part and parcel of cognitive linguistic studies in which different fields of science and humanities converge. This context creates a certain tension within the research methods used in CL analysis, some of which are dealt with in this volume. The applicability of CL research findings to diverse fields such as literature, culture studies, language education and others involving a number of leading projects on the CL agenda are also represented in the volume.
