Collaboration In Intercultural Discourse:

Collaboration in Intercultural Discourse Deborah M. Neil, 1996 In Collaboration in Intercultural Discourse the author examines naturalistic conversations in English between speakers from diverse ethnolinguistic backgrounds The study focuses on the discourse strategies which contribute to their successful intercultural communication Strategies such as repetition paraphrasing clarification and turn sharing are all examined individually and illustrated with textual examples The findings of this study contrast with those of many studies of intercultural communication which tend to highlight instances of miscommunication A collaborative communicative style is observed whereby speakers share the responsibility for producing mutually intelligible talk The author proposes a model of collaborative intercultural discourse

The construction of intercultural discourse Tom Koole, Jan D. ten Thije, 2020-10-12 This book breaks open the black box of the workplace where successful immigrants work together with their Dutch colleagues In their intercultural team meetings the work itself consists of communication and the question is how that work is done The teams consist of Dutch Turkish Moroccan and Surinamese educational experts whose job it is to advise schools and teachers on the form and content of language teaching Their meetings are structured according to institutional patterns such as interactive planning and reporting and according to intercultural discourse structures For instance Dutch team members identify their immigrant colleagues as immigrant specialists and are themselves identified as institutional specialists Further the intercultural pattern thematizing and unthematizing racism provides the team members with communicative methods to deal with the societal contradictions that exist between different cultural groups in the Netherlands as well as elsewhere These intercultural discourse structures concur with the institutional patterns so that for instance they affect the outcomes of planning discussions Most studies on intercultural communication focus on misunderstandings and miscommunications This book demonstrates that also communication without miscommunication can be shown to be intercultural

Collaboration in Intercultural Discourse Deborah Margaret Neil, 1994 Telecollaboration in Language Teacher Education Sedat Akayoglu, Bedrettin Yazan, Baburhan Uzum, 2026-01-22 This exploration of telecollaboration or virtual exchange studies in language teacher education considers its potential role in preparing teachers to work in linguistically and culturally diverse settings More and more language teacher educators are using telecollaboration as an essential component in their courses in order to connect teacher candidates from different geographical locations and ethnolinguistic backgrounds Part I looks at the foundation of telecollaboration in language teacher education Part II includes empirical evidence and global case examples related to telecollaboration to illustrate the benefits and challenges of incorporating telecollaboration to support interaction between the non native speakers Finally Part III provides insights into employing telecollaboration for intercultural professional development This book explores teacher candidates teachers and teacher educators professional learning identities and ideologies during their participation in transnational telecollaborative projects

Mediating Discourse Online Sally Sieloff Magnan, 2008. Information and communication technology is transforming our notion of literacy. In the study of second language learning, there is an acute need to understand how learners collaborate in mediating discourse online. This edited volume offers essays and research studies that lead us to question the borders between speech and writing, to redefine narrative, to speculate on the consequences of many-to-many communication, and to ponder the ethics of researching online interaction. Using diverse technologies—bulletin boards, course management systems, chats, instant messaging, online gaming, and situated in different cultural environments—the studies explore intercultural notions of identity, voice, and collaboration. Although the studies come from varying theoretical perspectives, they point as a whole to insights to be gained from an ecological approach to studying how people make discourse online. The volume will especially benefit researchers in the digital arena and instructors who must consider how online interaction affects language learning and use.

Intercultural Errors Versus Transcultural Solutions Gebhard Deissler, 2011-02-23. Document from the year 2011 in the subject Pedagogy. Intercultural Pedagogy course. Interkulturelles Management language English abstract. The ethnocentric, the cultural, intercultural, and the transcultural mindsets respectively create a cultural wave that spreads across and impacts the sea of time and space, and thereby those who share that time-space continuum. The ethnocentric perception is not aware of this interconnectedness, while the cultural or intercultural mindset can have variable degrees of awareness of it but cannot transcend the divisionary logic of this perceiver's creative logic. Only the transculturalist is fully aware of the interconnected field where the perceiver's consciousness co-creates the cultural world. Due to his awareness of a culture-integrative transcultural dimension of his constitution, he can transcend the interculturalists' fragmentation of the world by an integrative momentum based on a solid multidimensional scientific axiomatic.

Language Attrition Downunder Margit Waas, 1996. Language Attrition Downunder investigates the loss of a first language in a second language environment. In the first large-scale study on German speakers in Sydney, Australia, permanent residents and naturalised citizens who arrived as adults were interviewed.
