Blockbusters And Trade Wars:

Blockbusters and Trade Wars Peter S. Grant, Chris Wood, 2009-12-01 The unparalleled global distribution of books television programs and other cultural products would seem to augur well for the diversity of ideas and creative expression Yet ever more of this flow is concentrated in the hands of fewer giant corporations significantly American controlled whose agenda is not pluralism but profit This book focuses upon the market dynamics that drive ever greater audiences to blockbuster films TV programs books and recording artists at the expense of independent alternative and increasingly necessary national voices This is the first book from a Canadian perspective to investigate the facts about where and how cultural artifacts are created why they are so different from other manufactured products and why they must be treated differently Grant and Wood examine how much the nature and size of a cultural industry's owner's matters what national really means how content quotas expenditure rules and government subsidies help and hinder cultural industries and why a new international vision must prevail At the same time they take a look at competition law and how it can promote diversity while examining how freedom of expression and cultural diversity are inextricably linked Clearly written impeccably researched and passionately argued

Ultra Libris Rowland Lorimer, 2012-10-09 Reflecting cultural political and technological changes this detailed exploration of Canadian book publishing displays trends of the industry from the last 50 years Against the backdrop of historical highlights the book dives into modern events in book publishing focusing on the explosion of national book publishing in the 1970s and detailing the sparring match between the industry and government during the 1970s through the 1990s While industry and government policy both aimed at national survival in the face of globalization the book documents how beginning in the mid 1990s Ontario established an emphasis on financial stability for the cultural sector accompanied by stimulants to encourage participation in domestic and international markets This new vision laid the foundation for and anticipated the growing recognition of the creative economy worldwide Coinciding with that recognition came an embrace of technology not just as a business catalyst but also as a transformative medium for expression with the potential to change the nature of both book publishing and human understanding Finally the text concludes with a discourse on the future of books and book publishing not only in Canada but in the world as a whole

Torchwood Declassified Rebecca Williams, 2013-09-17 Torchwood started its life on television as a spin off from Doctor Who bringing Captain Jack to join new colleagues in a television series that quickly established itself as fresh and watchable television Its fourth series subtitled Miracle Day continued its move from the niche channel of BBC3 to metamorphose into an international production between the BBC and the US network Starz Torchwood has continued to entertain provoke and attract large audiences and an expanding fandom This is the first critical celebration of Torchwood across its four series considering issues of representation the fandom that surrounds the show and its complex institutional contexts Focusing in particular on how the meanings and understandings of cult television have shifted and become subject to technological industry and marketing changes in recent years Torchwood Declassified explores topics including the show's aesthetics and branding its use of tropes from the horror genre vast tie in merchandise status as a spin off the nature of a celebrity that is both cult and mainstream as well as the use of sound and music and of cult writers and Torchwood's connection to place and location The book will appeal to fans of the series researchers and scholars and anyone interested in ongoing questions over what cult television is what it means and why it continues to be of importance

East-West Identities Kwok B. Chan, Jan W. Walls, David Hayward, 2007 While the economic forces shaping globalization are powerful and seemingly getting stronger they are not immutable nor are their effects predictable or necessarily overwhelming Contributors to this book are optimistic that the socio cultural formations of the future such as cultural hybridity and cosmopolitanism will be a viable option for constructing new or renewed global communities of migrants around the world It is with these tools that migrants are best equipped to navigate the raging torrents of globalization in the new millennium of a post postmodern era Globalization brings with it a fear a sense of loss and demise It also brings with it a new sense of opportunity and hope It is in this spirit that this book should be read

Trading Culture Sylvia Harvey, 2006 Examines film and television media within the context of globalization

The Evolution of Chinese Popular Cinema Xiao Yang, 2026-03-04 The Evolution of Chinese Popular Cinema provides insights into the Chinese film industry and popular cinema in the past two decades with a major focus on the films produced since the mid 2010s The book emphasizes on the film market in mainland China since the mid 2010s and how it has been dramatically different from the previous decades featuring big names like Zhang Yimou and Feng Xiaogang Witnessing an age of baokuan films that have renewed box office records represented by Wolf Warrior 2, The Wandering Earth, Nezha and Hi Mom. This study contends that Baokuan films have forged a unique category in the landscape of Chinese cinema. It further reveals how these commercially successful films interact with industrial, economic, political, and social elements, illuminating transformations in Chinese filmmaking amid the country's evolving landscape since the 2010s through the post-pandemic era. It will be an insightful resource for undergraduate students, postgraduate students, and general audiences interested in Asian Studies, Film Studies, Chinese media and cultural studies, contemporary Chinese cinema and cultural industries, and Chinese cinema studies. The book will also inspire researchers in China Studies by discussing the instability of globalization and China's changing global strategies, state and popular nationalism, and the rise of active audiences through the lens of popular films.

Hollywood in China Ying Zhu, 2022-07-02. The inside story of the U.S.-China superpower conflict playing out behind the scenes of today's movie industry from the leading media scholar. China surpassed North America to become the world's largest movie market in 2020. Formerly the focus of exotic fascination in the golden age of Hollywood, today the Chinese are a make-or-break audience for Hollywood's biggest blockbusters. And movies are now an essential part of China's global soft power strategy. A Chinese real estate tycoon who until recently was the major shareholder of the AMC theater chain built the world's largest film production facility. Behind the curtains, as this brilliant new book reveals, movies have become one of the biggest areas of competition between the world's two remaining superpowers. Will Hollywood be eclipsed by its Chinese counterpart? No author is better positioned to untangle this riddle than Ying Zhu, a leading expert on Chinese film and media. In fascinating vignettes, Hollywood in China unravels the century-long relationship between Hollywood and China for the first time. Blending cultural history, business, and international relations, Hollywood in China charts multiple power dynamics and teases out how competing political and economic interests, as well as cultural values, are manifested in the art and artifice of filmmaking on a global scale and with global ramifications. The book is an inside look at the intense business and political maneuvering that is shaping the movies and the U.S.-China relationship itself, revealing a headlines-grabbing conflict that is playing out not only on the high seas but on the silver screen. Canadian Tax Journal, 2004. Current Law Index, 2007.

Watching Films Karina Aveyard, Albert Moran, 2013. Whether we stream them on our laptops, enjoy them in theaters, or slide them into DVD players to watch on our TVs, movies are part of what it means to be socially connected in the twenty-first century. Despite its significant role in our lives, the act of watching films remains an area of social activity that is little studied and thus little understood. In Watching Films, an international cast of contributors corrects this problem with a comprehensive investigation of movie-going, cinema exhibition, and film reception around the world. With a focus on the social, economic, and cultural factors that influence how we watch and think about movies, this volume centers its investigations on four areas of inquiry: Who watches films? Under what circumstances? What consequences and affects follow? And what do these acts of consumption mean? Responding to these questions, the contributors provide both historical perspective and fresh insights.

about the ways in which new viewing arrangements and technologies influence how films get watched everywhere from Canada to China to Ireland A long overdue consideration of an important topic Watching Films provides an engrossing overview of how we do just that in our homes and across the globe Media Asia ,2006 Hastings Communications and Entertainment Law Journal (Comm/Ent) ,2004 Mass Communication in Canada Rowland Lorimer, Mike Gasher, David Skinner,2007 Mass Communication in Canada examines the past present and future of mass communication and its effects on society Index to Legal Periodicals & Books ,2005 Dry Spring Chris Wood,2008 As it warms our world is running out of fresh water fast Lakes aquifers and rivers are disappearing but we consume more water than ever What will this mean for North Americans Dry spring shows dramatically how water loss will devastate countless communities over the next 25 years cities and farms forests and coastlines ranches and orchards The scarcity of water challenges the soaring success of some of our continent s fastest growing regions the American Southwest the arid plains of Western Canada the cross border Great Lakes Basin Yet while unprecedented dryness afflicts such areas as these violently wet storms pummel many others And drought and flooding will only worsen over time In years to come Canada will get more water and the U S less Wood demonstrates provocatively what this will mean for political relations He concludes with inspiring examples of choices we can all make that will help us preserve our water for future generations Book jacket Sights Unseen Dan North,2008 Many British films never make it to the screen Obstacles of finance censorship distribution or creative breakdown can appear in their way and they might even fail to get beyond the script stage This book collects new essays by leading scholars that use archival resources to reconstruct the stories behind a range of films by prominent film makers These thwarted productions are all too often excluded from histories of British cinema but the accounts of their unmaking contained in Sights Unseen provides an illuminating insight into the factors which have served to undermine the stability of the film industry in Britain Trends in Communication Policy Research Manuel Puppis,Natascha Just,2012 With contributions from leading international experts from within both the communications industry and academia Trends in Communication Policy Research comprises the very latest developments in the theories methods and practical applications of this dynamic field Topical and politically relevant this authoritative and up to date volume will prove an invaluable reference for students and scholars seeking to understand communication policy issues
