Physics of Laser Crystals Jean-Claude Krupa, Nicolay A. Kulagin, 2003-11-30 Physics of laser crystals has been constantly developing since the invention of the laser in 1960 Nowadays more than 1500 wide band gap and semiconductors crystals are suitable for the production of the laser effect Different laser devices are widely used in science medicine and communication systems according to the progress achieved in the development of laser crystal physics Scintillators for radiation detection also gained benefit from these developments Most of the optically active materials offer laser radiations within the 500 to 3000 nm region with various quantum efficiency which fit the usual applications However new crystals for laser emissions are needed either in the blue UV and VUV region or far IR region especially for medicine computer microchip production and for undiscovered practical uses Scientific problems of the growth and properties of laser crystals are discussed in numerous books and scientific journals by many scientists working in the field Therefore we thought that joint discussions of the scientific and technical problems in laser physics will be useful for further developments in this area We have proposed to held a Workshop on Physics of Laser Crystals for attempting to induce additional advances especially in solid state spectroscopy This NATO Advanced Research Workshop ARW was hold in Kharkiv Stary Saltov th nd Ukraine on august 26 September 2 2002 and was mainly devoted to the consideration 0 f modem approaches and last results in physics of laser crystals
