A Question Of Consequence:

Consequences of Language N. J. Enfield, Jack Sidnell, 2022-11-22 What is it about humans that makes language possible and what is it about language that makes us human If you are reading this you have done something that only our species has evolved to do You have acquired a natural language This book asks How has this changed us Where scholars have long wondered what it is about humans that makes language possible N J Enfield and Jack Sidnell ask instead What is it about humans that is made possible by language In Consequences of Language their objective is to understand what modern language really is and to identify its logical and conceptual consequences for social life Central to this undertaking is the concept of intersubjectivity the open sharing of subjective experience There is Enfield and Sidnell contend a uniquely human form of intersubjectivity and it is essentially intertwined with language in two ways a primary form of intersubjectivity was necessary for language to have begun evolving in our species in the first place and then language through its defining reflexive properties transformed the nature of our intersubjectivity In the authors analysis social accountability the bedrock of society is grounded in this linguistically transformed enhanced kind of intersubjectivity The account of the language mind society connection put forward in Consequences of Language is one of unprecedented reach suggesting new connections across disciplines centrally concerned with language from anthropology and philosophy to sociology and cognitive science and among those who would understand the foundational role of language in making us human

Feminist Consequences Elisabeth Bronfen, Misha Kavka (red), 2001 Exploring the status of feminism in this postfeminist age this sophisticated meditation on feminist thinking over the past three decades moves away from the all too common dependence on French theorists and male thinkers and instead builds on a wide ranging body of feminist theory written by women These writings address the question Where are we going as well as Where have we come from As evidenced in the essays compiled here the multiplicity of directions available to this new feminism ranges from poststructuralist academic theory through cultural activism to re readings of law literature and representation Contributors include Mieke Bal Lauren Berlant Rosi Braidotti Elisabeth Bronfen Judith Butler Rey Chow Drucilla Cornell Ann Cvetkovich Jane Gallop Beatrice Hanssen Claire Kahane Ranjana Khanna Bidy Martin Juliet Mitchell Anita Haya Patterson and Valerie Smith Feminist Consequences representing the forefront of international feminist thought marks a new and long desired stage of feminist criticism where women are themselves making theory rather than reacting to male production

Developmental Spans in Event Comprehension and Representation Paul van den Broek, Patricia J. Bauer, Tammy Bourg, 2013-12-16 This book is about building metaphorical bridges all sorts of bridges At the most basic level it concerns the bridges that individuals build to understand the events that they experience the bridges that connect the events in the mind s eye At another level it is about bridges that interconnect findings and theoretical frameworks concerning event comprehension and representation in different age groups ranging from infancy to adulthood Finally it is about building bridges between researchers who share interests yet may not ordinarily even be aware of each other's work. The success of the book will be measured in terms of the extent to which the contributors have been able to create a picture of the course of development across a wide span in chronological age and across different types of events from the fictional to the actual. The individuals whose work is represented in this book conduct their work in a shared environment; they all have an intellectual and scholarly interest in event comprehension and representation. These interests are manifest in the overlapping themes of their work. These include a focus on how people come to temporally integrate individual snapshots to form a coherent event that unfolds over time to understand cause and effect and to appreciate the role of the goal of events. Another overlapping theme involves the possibility of individual differences. These themes are apparent in work on the early development of representations of specific episodes and autobiographical memories and comprehension of complex events such as stories involving multiple characters and emotions. The editors of this volume had two missions: to create a development span by bringing together researchers working from infancy to adulthood and to create a bridge between individuals working from within the text comprehension perspective within the naturalistic perspective and with laboratory analogues to the naturalistic perspective. Their measure of success will be the extent to which they have been able to create a picture of the course of development across a wide span in chronological age and across different types of events from fictional to actual.
