About

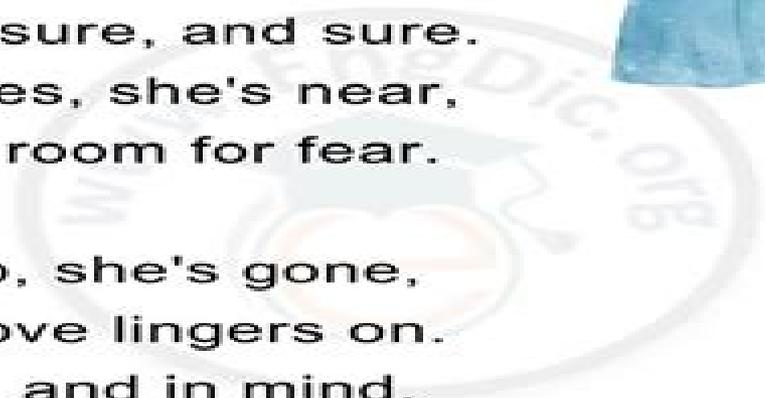

Angels

www.Engdic.org

In the night, so deep,
An angel comes, no peep.
Whispers love, so fine,
In dreams, she's mine.

Feathers white, and pure,
Guidance sure, and sure.
In struggles, she's near,
No more room for fear.

Wake up, she's gone,
Yet her love lingers on.
In heart, and in mind,
A friend so hard to find.

Wingless Angels Mehernosh Khan, 2002 The second volume in the collection of autobiographical fictional and spiritual poems with a metaphysical slant to the sensuous Each poem has an introduction outlining the creative impulse in the genesis of the poem The premise of the poems is based on a personal philosophy that we are all born as angels and our journey is to find our wings or angel nature again Whereas the first collection of poems was heavy with the pain and joy of life's lessons this anthology starts where the other left off And then soars into the light Whereas the former was introspective and autobiographical here I have explored the inner poetry of other lives And in doing so I have found a common ground A common truth in our very uncommon and unique existences Once We were all Angels Once We all had Wings Some of Us know this Some of Us don't And some of Us know how to fly Angel Voices Hugh Morrison, 2015-05-24 Look now for glad and golden hours Come swiftly on the wing O rest beside the weary road And hear the angels sing Poets have been writing about angels for hundreds of years about how they visit us guard us and lead us into the paths of light This collection comprises beautiful verse from writers including William Shakespeare Emily Dickinson and William Blake Whether
