Kathy S. Leonard

Angels Last Conquest:

El Angel's Last Conquest Elvira Orphée, 1985 A novel from Argentina where publication was halted for many years about the life and career of a torturer The torturer has no name but we come to know him well as he plies his craft from episode to episode He serves his apprenticeship with the devotion of the professional Victim after victim is strapped down before him as he perfects his vocation They fade away as he moves upward in the hierarchy of his bizarre career So many questions lie behind as posed by Elvira Orphée How can torturers have a family Is it possible that they love their own children and intensely hate the children of others Do they feel the suffering they induce and watch Is it possible for them to imagine themselves in the place of their victims Elvira Orphée seems concerned with commentary about her native Argentina but she is most interested in the universal notion of torture This novel her fifth and initially published in Spanish in her sister country of Venezuela is a special contribution to our understanding of a sorrowful human condition It finally appeared in Argentina in November 1984 seven years after its first publication Ashes of Revolt Marjorie Agosín, 1996 it is about singing despite beatings the new public voices of women invented out of private pain Diane Russell Pineda Latin-American Women Writers Myriam Yvonne Jehenson, 1995-08-10 This book provides a much needed grouping of Latin American women emphasizing their differences the diversity of their cultural backgrounds socio economic conditions and literary strategies as well as their commonalities Humble writers of the Spanish and Portuguese testimonio and sophisticated postmodernist authors alike are contextualized within a matriheritage of founding discourses Latin American Women Writers Kathy S. Women and Power in Argentine Literature Gwendolyn Díaz,2010-01-01 The astonishing talent of Argentine women writers belies the struggles they have faced not merely as overlooked authors but as women of conviction facing oppression The patriarchal pressures of the Per n years the terror of the Dirty War and more recently the economic collapse that gripped the nation in 2001 created such repressive conditions that some writers such as Luisa Valenzuela left the country for long periods Not surprisingly power has become an inescapable theme in Argentine women s fiction and this collection shows how the dynamics of power capture not only the political world but also the personal one Whether their characters are politicians and peasants torturers and victims parents and children or lovers male and female each writer explores the effects of power as it is exercised by or against women The fifteen writers chosen for Women and Power in Argentine Literature include famous names such as Valenzuela as well as authors anthologized for the first time most notably Mar a Kodama widow of Jorge Luis Borges Each chapter begins with a verbal portrait editor Gwendolyn D az s personal impression of the author at ease formed through hours of conversation and interviews A biographical essay and critical commentary follow with emphasis on the work included in this anthology D az s interviews translated from Spanish and finally the stories themselves only three of which have been previously published in English complete the chapters The extraordinary depth of these chapters reflects the nuanced often controversial portrayals of power observed by Argentine women writers Inspiring as well as insightful Women and Power in Argentine Literature is ultimately about women who in D az s words choose to speak their truth regardless of the consequences
