Angkor Wat Time Space And Kingship:

Angkor Wat Eleanor Mannikka,1996 In her exploration of Angkor Wat Mannikka found that the key to understanding the temple lay in the measurement system used by its original builders By translating meters into cubits she uncovered a highly sophisticated system of philosophical and religious principles expressed in the temple measurements themselves Their lengths record precise astronomical information including a definition of the celestial ecliptic the north south oscillation of the sun each year and equinox and solstice days The meaning represented in the measurements and their patterns transforms ordinary space into a sacred environment The measurements connect the temple to the stars and the cosmos bridge the gap between human and divine realms help unite the king and his deity in short they define how time space kingship and divinity exist inseparably from each other Mannikka takes the reader on a detailed tour of Angkor Wat moving from the western entrance bridge across the long causeway to the central galleries and up to the central tower itself showing what the design of the temple tells us about Khmer beliefs regarding their king their deities and the world around them Detailed temple plans illustrating measurement patterns and numerous photographs of all parts of the temple accompany the text Angkor Wat Time Space and Kingship shows clearly the role that astronomy history cosmology and politics can play in determining a structure s format and dimensions The new methods of architectural analysis pioneered here will serve as a model for architectural historians in Asia and elsewhere

Foundations of New World Cultural Astronomy Anthony F. Aveni, 2008 Cultural astronomy first called archaeoastronomy has evolved at ferocious speed since its genesis in the 1960s with seminal essays and powerful rebuttals published in far flung specialized journals Until now only the most closely involved scholars could follow the intellectual fireworks In Foundations of New World Cultural Astronomy Anthony Aveni one of cultural astronomy's founders and top scholars offers a selection of the essays that built the field from foundational works to contemporary scholarship

Interchange, 1999 Khosana, 2000 Aztec City-state Capitals Michael Ernest Smith, 2008 The Aztecs ruled much of Mexico from the thirteenth century until the Spanish conquest in 1521 Outside of the imperial capital of Tenochtitlan various urban centers ruled the numerous city states that covered the central Mexican landscape Aztec City State Capitals is the first work to focus attention outside Tenochtitlan revealing these dozens of smaller cities to have been the central hubs of political economic and religious life integral to the grand infrastructure of the Aztec empire Focusing on building styles urban townscapes layouts and designs Michael Smith combines two archaeological approaches monumental excavations of pyramids palaces and public buildings and social excavations of houses workshops and fields As a result he is able to integrate the urban built environment and the lives of the Aztec peoples as reconstructed from excavations Smith demonstrates the ways in which these city state capitals were different from Tenochtitlan and convincingly argues that urban design is the direct result of decisions made by political leaders to legitimize their own power and political roles in the states of the Aztec empire Choice, 1998 Myth and History in the Historiography of Early Burma Michael Aung-Thwin, 1998 After a careful re-reading of primary sources written in Old Burmese author Michael Aung Thwin set about tracing the history of five key events that took place during the Kingdom of Pagan in order to disentangle that history from myth He found that four of the five events which have been considered the most important in the history of early Burma are actually inventions of late nineteenth and twentieth century colonial historians caught in their own intellectual and political world A fifth is a genuine indigenous Burmese myth but it too has been embellished by modern historians Aung Thwin concludes that these five key events which have been taught as Burmese history for the past hundred years actually have no basis in history CSEAS. Maxwell, Jaroslav Poncar, 2006 The rich and evocative bas reliefs of Angkor Wat have captured the imagination of travelers artists and scholars for centuries Built for the Khmer king Suryavarman II in the twelfth century the enormous temple complex consists of an outer enclosure surrounded by a moat with three further concentric rectangular enclosures inside it The bas reliefs featured in this book are carved on the walls of the third enclosure Jaroslav Poncar has brilliantly captured the detail of these huge reliefs measuring more than two meters in height and five hundred meters in overall length using the high precision technique of slit scan photography One hundred full page panoramic photographs bring readers within the very walls of Angkor Scenes from the great Indian epics the Ramayana and Mahabharata are expansively explained and interpreted by Angkor expert Thomas S Maxwell Structure and Society in Early South India Kenneth R. Hall, 2004 The essays in this collection address the emergence of rural and urban societies and state systems in the region and demonstrate the richness of contemporary research particularly that based on the study of pre colonial south Indian temple inscriptions Journal of Asian History, 1997 Buddhism Donald William Mitchell, 2008 Buddhism Introducing the Buddhist Experience Second Edition focuses on the depth of Buddhist experience as expressed in the teachings and practices of its religious and philosophical traditions Taking a broad and inclusive approach this unique work spans over 2 500 years offering chapters on Buddhism s origins in India Theravada and Mahayana Buddhism and Buddhism in Southeast Asia Tibet China Korea and Japan Author Donald W Mitchell provides substantial selections of primary text material throughout that illustrate a great variety of moral cultural psychological meditative and spiritual Buddhist experiences The second edition adds six brief end of chapter essays by scholars and practitioners on cultural experiences of Buddhism in Thailand Tibet China Korea Japan and America It also offers additional photographs new sections on topics like Buddhist cosmology expanded coverage of Buddhism and globalization and updated suggestions for further reading Social Orders and Social Landscapes Laura M. Popova, Charles W. Hartley, Adam T. Smith, 2007 Social Orders and Social Landscapes marks a new direction in research for Eurasian archaeology that focuses on how people lived in their local environment and interacted with their near and distant neighbours rather than on overarching comparisons of archaeological culture complexes Stemming from the 2005 University of Chicago Eurasian Archaeology Conference the papers collected here reflect this new research agenda though the way in which each author addressed the theme of the conference and thus the book was strikingly varied This diversity arises out of the field TM s intellectual flux driven by the principled engagement of the rich analytical traditions of the Soviet CIS Anglo American and European schools Despite the variability in approaches and subject matter several key themes emerged 1 the reinterpretation culture categories by examining particular aspects of social life 2 the role social memory plays in the production of landscape and place 3 the influence of the built environment on societies and 4 the ways in which economic considerations affect social orders and landscapes The result is a book that helps to re image Eurasia as a complex landscape fragmented by historically contingent and shifting ecological and social boundaries rather than a bounded mosaic of culture areas or environmental zones. Scholarly research on Eurasia was transformed by the collapse of the Soviet Union in 1991. Entire areas and fields of research became accessible to European and American scholars for the first time resulting in the emergence of new centers specializing in primary field investigations throughout the vast politically transformed landmass of Eurasia. One such center is the University of Chicago that has recently sponsored two large international conferences on Eurasian archaeology: Social Orders and Social Landscapes is the product of the second Chicago conference held in spring 2005. The editors of the volume should be proud of their efforts that have resulted in such a broad ranging and prompt publication. The articles encompass a variety of disciplinary perspectives including archaeology, history, art history, palynology and zooarchaeology, extend chronologically from Neolithic and Bronze Age times to the formation of national identity in Turkey in the early 20th century and range geographically from Europe to China. Several articles reconstruct basic subsistence activities, others analyze distinctive settlement types and political and cultural frontiers including the assimilation and emergence of new self defined ethnic groups and the selective adoption of new systems of religious belief. What unites this diverse collection is their consistent emphasis on the social construction of reality and the production of social landscapes and memories that altered perceptions of the physical world and mediated the practical activities that here have been convincingly reconstructed from the archaeological record. In so doing rigid stereotypes are questioned and novel interpretations persuasively advanced. Early Bronze Age pastoralism on the south Russian steppes did not consist exclusively of herding animals nor was it combined as it was later in the Iron Age with the pursuit of agriculture. Rather, D. Anthony and D. Brown suggest that at least in the Samara river valley the herding of animals occurred alongside the intensive gathering of wild nutritionally rich plants. The kalas of ancient Chorasmia are not cities nor even proto urban formations but rather are large heavily fortified enclosures meant to repel attacks of armed nomadic cavalry. They represent a continuation of a distinct Central Asian settlement pattern that began in the Bronze Age and that formed the center of a landscape divided into contiguous self contained oases. The Mongols not only herded livestock but also farmed, fished, hunted and traded throughout the vast area that they had conquered uniting most of Eurasia into a single economically integrated system. New perspectives proliferate throughout this richly detailed and extremely broad ranging collected volume. Phil Kohl, Professor of Anthropology and the Kathryn W. Davis, Professor of Slavic Studies at Wellesley College. Social Orders and Social Landscapes is a stimulating addition to the still small literature in English making the rich datasets from the archaeology of Eurasia widely accessible to Western scholars. The authors of the eighteen chapters analyze data from China to the Mediterranean from the fourth millennium BCE through the fourteenth century CE with the tools of art and architectural history, text analysis, paleobotany and paleozoology and anthropological theory among others. The product of a conference at the University of Chicago, this book fulfills the goal of the graduate student organizers to apply interdisciplinary approaches to understanding the archaeology and history of the Eurasian landmass in local terms through a focus on how people lived in their local environments In the decade and a half since the end of the Soviet Union scholarly communication has broadened and the mutual influences have stimulated many new and thought provoking views on the Eurasian past This book is an exemplary product of the new scholarly discourse Karen S Rubinson Research Scholar Department of Anthropology Barnard College Columbia University Writer's Guide to Book Editors, Publishers, and Literary Agents, 1998-1999 Jeff Herman, 1997 A real find for the aspiring writer The Associated Press In depth information The Writer Who are they What do they want How do you win them over Find the answers to these questions and more in the 1998 1999 edition of the Writer s Guide to Book Editors Publishers and Literary Agents by Jeff Herman Filled with the information authors and aspiring authors need in order to avoid having a manuscript end up in the slush pile this comprehensive listing is organized in an easy to use format It includes in depth information about publishing houses and literary agents in the United States and Canada The specifics include the names and addresses of editors and agents what they re looking for comission rates and other key information In addition readers will discover the most common mistakes people make while attempting to solicit an agent and how to avoid them as well as numerous suggestions designed to increase the chances of getting representation Writer s Guide to Book Editors Publishers and Literary Agents also includes dozens of valuable essays giving readers insight and guidance into such topics as How to Write the Perfect Query Letter The Knockout Nonfiction Book Proposal How to Thrive After Signing a Publishing Contract Mastering Ghostwriting and Collaboration Free Versus Fee The Issue of Literary Agency Fees About the Author Jeff Herman is the founder of The Jeff Herman Literary Agency a leading New York agency He has sold hundreds of titles and represents dozens of top authors Herman frequently speaks to writer s groups and at conferences on the topic of getting published AAR/SBL Annual Meeting Program American Academy of Religion.
