Animal Bones Human Societies:

Animal Bones, Human Societies Peter Rowley-Conwy, P. Rowley-Conwy, 2000 In this text 20 specialists demonstrate how archaeological animal remains can reveal past human behaviour The papers range across the world from the Arctic to subtropical deserts and through time from the Australopithecines to the Earl of Huntingdon The authors make use of animals weighing from only 100 grams small rodents to 100 tons whales and show just how interesting and important are the questions that can be answered

Social Zooarchaeology Nerissa Russell, 2011-11-14 This is the first book to provide a systematic overview of social zooarchaeology which takes a holistic view of human animal relations in the past Until recently archaeological analysis of faunal evidence has primarily focused on the role of animals in the human diet and subsistence economy This book however argues that animals have always played many more roles in human societies as wealth companions spirit helpers sacrificial victims totems centerpieces of feasts objects of taboos and more These social factors are as significant as taphonomic processes in shaping animal bone assemblages Nerissa Russell uses evidence derived from not only zooarchaeology but also ethnography history and classical studies to suggest the range of human animal relationships and to examine their importance in human society Through exploring the significance of animals to ancient humans this book provides a richer picture of past societies

Behaviour Behind Bones Sharyn Jones O'Day, Wim Van Neer, Anton Ervynck, 2003-12-01 This book is the first in a series of volumes which form the published proceedings of the 9th meeting of the International Council of Archaeozoology ICAZ held in Durham in 2002 The 35 papers present a series of case studies from around the world They stretch beyond the standard zooarchaeological topics of economy and ecology and consider how zooarchaeological research can contribute to our understanding of human behaviour and social systems The volume is divided into two parts Part 1 Beyond Calories focuses on the zooarchaeology of ritual and religion Contributors discuss ways to approach questions of ritual and religion through the faunal record and consider how material culture depicting and or associated with animals can provides clues about ideology religious practices and the role of animals within spiritual systems Part 2 Equations for Inequality looks at questions of identity status and other forms of social differentiation in former human societies Contributors discuss how differences in food consumption nutrition and food procurement strategies can be related to various forms of social differentiation among individuals and groups

Animal Bones D. James Rackham,1994 The bones of animals are common finds on many excavations Interesting as evidence of the occurrence of animals both domestic and wild at various times throughout history bones can also yield information about the human societies that hunted or kept these animals Bones provide clues to historical period climate predation patterns environment husbandry farming even religion and trade Written for general readers as well as those with a specific interest in archaeology and anthropology James Rackham s book appeals to our great curiosity about those creatures who have previously inhabited the earth Like man made artifacts such as pottery and metalwork animals bones link us to an earlier time Humans, Animals, and the Craft of Slaughter in Archaeo-Historic Societies Krish Seetah,2018-10-25

This book conceptualizes butchery as an expression of technological knowledge and culture embedded in action defining the human animal relationship Animal Bones and Human Society in the Late Younger Stone Age of Arctic Norway

Lisa Maye Hodgetts,1999 Humans, Animals, and the Craft of Slaughter in Archaeo-Historic Societies Krish Seetah,2018-10-25 In this book Krish Seetah uses butchery as a point of departure for exploring the changing historical relationships between animal utility symbolism and meat consumption Seetah brings together several bodies of literature on meat cut marks craftspeople and the role of craft in production that have heretofore been considered in isolation from one another Focusing on the activity inherent in butcher he describes the history of knowledge that typifies the craft He also provides anthropological and archaeological case studies which showcase examples of butchery practices in varied contexts that are seldom identified with zooarchaeological research Situating the relationship between practice practitioner material and commodity this imaginative study offers new insights into food production consumption and the craft of cuisine

Archaeological Theory and Scientific Practice Andrew Jones,2001-12-06 Is archaeology an art or a science This question has been hotly debated over the last few decades with the rise of archaeological science At the same time archaeologists have seen a change in the intellectual character of their discipline as many writers have adopted approaches influenced by social theory The discipline now encompasses both archaeological scientists and archaeological theorists and discussion regarding the status of archaeology remains polarised In this 2001 book Andrew Jones argues that we need to analyse the practice of archaeology Through an analysis of archaeological practice influenced by recent developments in the field of science studies and with the aid of extensive case studies he develops a new framework which allows the interpretative and methodological components of the discipline to work in tandem His reassessment of the status and character of archaeology will be of interest to students scholars and professionals The Origins of Human Society Peter Bogucki,2000-01-04 The Origins of Human Society traces the development of human culture from its origins over 2 million years ago to the emergence of literate civilization In addition to a global coverage of prehistoric life the book pays specific attention to the origins and dispersal of anatomically modern humans the development of symbolic expression the transition from mobile foraging bands to sedentary households early agriculture and its consequences the emergence of social differentiation and hereditary ranking and the prehistoric roots of ancient states and empires The Blackwell History of the World Series The goal of this ambitious series is to provide an accessible source of knowledge about the entire human past for every curious person in every part of the world It will comprise some two dozen volumes of which some provide synoptic views of the history of particular regions while others consider the world as a whole during a particular period of time The volumes are narrative in form giving balanced attention to social and cultural history in the broadest sense as well as to institutional development and political change Each provides a systematic account of a very large subject but they are also both imaginative and interpretative The Series is intended to be accessible to the widest possible readership and the accessibility of its volumes is matched by the style of presentation and production
