Animal Quarantine in the Asia-Pacific Region and Its Influence on Trade for Pacific Island Nations ,1993 Manual of Procedures for the Implementation of the Asia Regional Technical Guidelines on Health Management for the Responsible Movement of Live Aquatic Animals Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,2001-01-01 This manual of procedures provides expert technical advice to assist national and regional efforts in Asia to implement the guidelines for reducing the risks of disease due to transboundary movement of live aquatic animals It was jointly initiated by the Food and Agriculture Organisation and the Network of Aquaculture Centres in Asia Pacific in 1998 with the participation of 21 countries throughout the region The Asia Letter ,1994 Asian Bibliography ,1995 Health Management in Asian Aquaculture Rohana P. Subasinghe,James Richard Arthur,Mohamed Shariff,Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,1996-01-01 In 1994 world aquaculture production reached 25.5 million mt valued at US 39.83 billion Asia contributed 89.9% of this total and has since continued to dominate global production. The drive to produce more fish and shellfish to meet the growing demand has led many aquaculturists in Asia to intensify their operations. In many instances the complex balance between the fish/shellfish and the environment is not well understood; the organism under culture subsequently becomes stressed and prone to infections. As we have already witnessed, disease has been and will continue to be a major constraint to the development of the aquaculture industry. Considering the FAO's priority on developing sustainable aquaculture, the large Asian contribution to global aquaculture production and the seemingly high losses of revenue due to diseases and health-related problems, FAO, in consultation with the Network of Aquaculture Centres in the Asia-Pacific (NACA), the Aquatic Animal Health Research Institute (AAHRI), the South East Asian Fisheries Development Centre (SEAFDEC), and the Universiti Pertanian Malaysia (UPM) and in collaboration with the Fish Health Section of the Asian Fisheries Society (FHS/AFS) organized a Regional Expert Consultation on Aquaculture Health Management in Asia and the Pacific, which was held at the Universiti Pertanian Malaysia in Serdang, Malaysia, in May 1995. This document comprises the technical papers presented at the Consultation and is a supplement to the report of the consultation, FAO Fisheries Report No. 529.
