The writings of the dean of the New York School of Abstract Expressionist Painting The creative process lies not in imitating but in paralleling nature translating the impulse received from nature into the medium of expression thus vitalizing this medium The picture should be alive the statue should be alive and every work of art should be alive Thus Hans Hofmann wrote nearly half a century ago He left the Old World Germany for the New at the age of 50 In 1948 when the retrospective exhibition was held at the Addison Gallery of American Art Hofmann was 68 he had been in the United States for 18 years a citizen for seven years Yet he was scarcely recognized in Europe or America as an artist of significance and had never had a full scale retrospective exhibition of his work Beginning with a group exhibition in Germany in 1909 he had been given 12 one man shows and had been included in four group exhibitions before the exhibit at Andover Subsequently he was to have 33 one man shows and to be in over 60 group exhibitions including the 1960 Venice Biennale in which he was one of the four artists chosen to represent America The catalogue of the 1948 retrospective at the Addison Gallery incorporated Hofmann s writings all originally written in German some pieces translated fluently others awkwardly paraphrasing the original He had written them over a period of 40 years for periodicals journals or his own teaching purposes occasionally they overlapped there was no sequence of development In the original volume of Search for the Real published in 1948 it was felt desirable to edit his writing as little as possible nevertheless to present the essays in the most lucid English true to his meaning printed only with his approval The Search for the Real in the Visual Arts Sculpture and Painting and Culture were all printed in full The section Excerpts from the Teaching of Hans Hofmann was composed of selections from his essays On the Aims of Art and Plastic Creation The last brief section Terms was gleaned from the other essays lectures diagrams notes and cryptic memoranda written to himself headed by one of Hoffman s diagrams It was a further distillation of his own definitions in the nature of a vocabulary In the last 18 years of his life recognition was his nationally and internationally in proportion to the originality and depth of his thinking his versatility and comprehensiveness his productivity and vigor His was a prophetic visual expression of action in a three dimensional world on a vibrating two dimensional surface He was a dynamic teacher the wide range of his influence is to be seen in the list of artists comprising an exhibition Hans Hofmann and His Students circulated in America and abroad during the three years before his death in 1966 Among the 32 painters and sculptors in this exhibition were students as varied in their developed personal idioms as Helen Frankenthaler Larry Rivers Louise Nevelson Richard Stankiewicz and Alan Kaprow Running simultaneously and also shown in South America and Europe as well as in the United States a one man show of 40 major works initiated by the Museum of Modern Art New York is a testimony to the words of the dean of the New York School of Abstract Expressionist Painting
