ENGLISH DESCRIPTION English and Spanish have been at war since Queen Elisabeth sank King Felipe's Spanish Armada in 1588 Rosario Ferré writes in the title poem of Language Duel Language carries with it all their fire and power Ferré explores this tension throughout this explosive collection which plays with the sensual differences between the languages and lays bare many of the complications facing an increasingly bilingual America In these poems Miami is celebrated as a modern Tower of Babel and a place where the layers of history are particularly palpable Wave after wave of conquerors wash across the Americas A well dressed Latino businessman inadvertently reveals his roots at the Ritz when someone steps on his foot eliciting a profanity in Spanish Intimate snapshots capture the nameless heroism of homeless men the exuberance of a child's affection for her hometown and memories of lovers

Post poststructuralism and psychoanalysis and in an era of global migration in which English is the lingua franca but not necessarily the lingua aesthetica for migrants readers and critics are more aware than ever that words and meanings wander that writers cannot be taken at their word and that the borders between literary forms fiction poetry life writing essays often do not hold What happens then with writers who work in English but have more than one language at their disposal Do their words wander from one language one life one self one literary form to another do the psychic and cultural worlds of their languages split apart or merge Does their English betray the presence of another language is that other language erased or does it appear here and there on special occasions with special meanings What in different forms of literature is the aesthetic effect of such wandering splitting or merging How do writers negotiate their representation of a multilingual world for a monolingual audience Wanderwords brings together literary and cultural theory with areas of research that have a bearing on but do not directly address the problems of representation that creative writers face when the dilemma of what language to write in and consequently what audience to write for presents itself The result is of necessity interdisciplinary and involves socio and psycholinguistics as well as psychoanalysis and neuroscience history and theory of migration and ethnicity and of course literary and cultural theory specifically of life writing Memoir Rosario Ferré,2015-10-26 Memoir is Rosario Ferré's account of her life both as a writer and as a member of a family at the center of the economic and political history of Puerto Rico during the American Century one hundred years of territorial non incorporation into the United States The autobiography tells the story of Ferré's transformation from the daughter of a privileged family into a celebrated novelist poet and essayist concerned with the welfare of Puerto Ricans and with the difficulties of being a woman in Puerto Rican society It is a snapshot of twentieth century Puerto Rico through the lens of a writer profoundly aware of her social position It is a picture taken from the perspective of a keen observer of the local history of the island and of the history of the United States Included are many photographs that connect Ferré's life with the story of her writing career The Routledge Handbook of Latin American Literary Translation Delfina Cabrera,Denise Kripper,2023-03-24 The Routledge Handbook of Latin American Literary Translation offers an understanding of translation in Latin America both at a regional and transnational scale Broad in scope it is devoted primarily to thinking comprehensively and systematically about the intersection of literary translation and Latin American literature with a curated selection of original essays that critically engage with translation theories and
