Li, Dongmin Lee, 2011-07-16 China and East Asian Strategic Dynamics the Shaping of a New Regional Order edited by Mingjiang Li and Dongmin Lee examines how China's remarkable economic growth and its proactive diplomatic efforts in recent years have not only shored up its importance in global issues but also induced a transformation of the strategic dynamics in East Asia. The authors argue that major power relations in the region appear to be driven by some new momentum along with the changing international environment. The contributors of this edited volume are well known scholars in their areas of specialty and the book is divided into five parts. The first part discusses China's soft and hard power in East Asia. The second examines China and the strategic interactions between major powers; this particular section is devoted to discussion on the strategic responses of the major regional powers: the United States, Japan, Korea, India, and ASEAN to China's rise. Part three focuses on China's strategic approach to East Asian regionalism. Of particular note are China's active leadership role in institution building efforts, strategic calculations, and preference for an informal approach. The fourth section analyzes the Cross Taiwan Strait relations and their impact on both China and East Asia. The final section of China and East Asian Strategic Dynamics addresses the issue of China and maritime order in East Asia. China and East Asian Strategic Dynamics the Shaping of a New Regional Order edited by Mingjiang Li and Dongmin Lee is a pioneering work. Given that the rise of China is a prominent issue in politics and economics worldwide, this edited collection is essential for a wide audience of policy makers, academics, and students alike.

Non-Western International Relations Theory Amitav Acharya, Barry Buzan, 2009-12-22. Given that the world has moved well beyond the period of Western colonialism and clearly into a durable period in which non-Western cultures have gained their political autonomy, it is long past time that non-Western voices had a higher profile in debates about international relations, not just as disciples of Western schools of thought but as inventors of their own approaches. Western IR theory has had the advantage of being the first in the field and has developed many valuable insights, but few would defend the position that it captures everything we need to know about world politics. In this book, Acharya and Buzan introduce non-Western IR traditions to a Western IR audience and challenge the dominance of Western theory. An international team of experts reinforces existing criticisms that IR theory is Western-focused and therefore misrepresents and misunderstands much of world history by introducing the reader to non-Western traditions, literature, and histories relevant to how IR is conceptualized. Including case studies on Chinese, Japanese, South Korean, Southeast Asian, Indian, and Islamic IR, this book redresses the imbalance and opens up a cross-cultural comparative perspective on how and why thinking about IR has developed in the way it has. As such, it will be invaluable reading for both
