Dutch Fairy Tales for Young Folks William Elliot Griffis, 2005-01-01 Long ago in Dutch Fairy Land there lived a young mermaid who was very proud of her good looks She was one of a family of mere or lake folks dwelling not far from the sea Her home was a great pool of water that was half salt and half fresh for it lay around an island near the mouth of a river Part of the day when the sea tides were out she splashed and played dived and swam in the soft water of the inland current When the ocean heaved and the salt water rushed in the mermaid floated and frolicked and paddled to her heart's content Her father was a gray bearded merryman and very proud of his handsome daughter He owned an island near the river mouth where the young mermaids held their picnics and parties and received the visits of young merrymen Her mother and two aunts were merwomen All of these were sober folks and attended to the business which occupies all well brought up mermaids and merrymen This was to keep their pool clean and nice No frogs toads or eels were allowed near but in the work of daily housecleaning the storks and the mermaids were great friends All water creatures that were not thought to be polite and well behaved were expected to keep away Even some silly birds such as loons and plovers and all screaming and fighting creatures with wings were warned off the premises because they were not wanted This family of merry folks liked to have a nice quiet time by themselves without any rude folks on legs or with wings or fins from the outside Indeed they wished to make their pool a model for all respectable mermaids and merrymen for ten leagues around It was very funny to see the old daddy merman with a switch made of reeds shooing off the saucy birds such as the sandpipers and screeching gulls For the bullfrogs too big for the storks to swallow and for impudent fishes he had a whip made of seaweed Of course all the mermaids in good society were welcome but young mermen were allowed to call only once a month during the week when the moon was full Then the evenings were usually clear so that when the party broke up the mermen could see their way in the moonlight to swim home safely with their mermaid friends For there were sea monsters that loved to plague the merefolk and even threatened to eat them up The mermaids dear creatures had to be escorted home but they felt safe for their mermen brothers and daddies were so fierce that except sharks even the larger fish such as porpoises and dolphins were afraid to come near them
