Dying Acts:

Final Acts Nan Bauer-Maglin, Donna Perry, 2009-12-07 Today most people die gradually from incremental illnesses rather than from the heart attacks or fast moving diseases that killed earlier generations Given this new reality the essays in Final Acts explore how we can make informed and caring end of life choices for ourselves and for those we love and what can happen without such planning Contributors include patients caretakers physicians journalists lawyers social workers educators hospital administrators academics psychologists and a poet and among them are ethicists religious believers and nonbelievers Some write moving personal accounts of good or bad deaths others examine the ethical social and political implications of slow dying Essays consider death from natural causes suicide and aid in dying assisted suicide Writing in a style free of technical jargon the contributors discuss documents that should be prepared health proxy do not resuscitate order living will power of attorney decision making over medical interventions life support hospice and palliative care aid in dying treatment location speaking for those who can no longer express their will and the roles played by religion custom family friends caretakers money the medical establishment and the government For those who yearn for some measure of control over death the essayists in Final Acts from very different backgrounds and with different personal and professional experiences around death and dying offer insight and hope

Rhetoric and Drama in the Johannine Lawsuit Motif George L. Parsenios, 2010

George L. Parsenios explores the legal character of the Gospel of John in the light of classical literature especially Greek drama Johannine interpreters have explored with increasing interest both the legal quality and the dramatic quality of the Fourth Gospel but often do not connect these two ways of reading John Some interpreters even assume that the one approach excludes the other and that John is either legal or dramatic but not both Legal rhetoric and tragic drama however were joined throughout antiquity in a complex pattern of mutual influence To connect John to drama therefore is to connect John to legal rhetoric and doing so helps to see even more clearly the pervasiveness of the legal motif in the Gospel of John

Tracing the legal character of seeking in Sophocles Oedipus Rex for example sheds new light on the legal character of seeking in the Fourth Gospel especially in the enigmatic comment of Jesus at John 8:50

New insights are also offered regarding the evidentiary character of the signs of Jesus based on comparison with Aristotle's comments about signs and rhetorical evidence in both the Poetics and Rhetoric as well as by comparison with plays by Aeschylus Sophocles and Euripides To call the signs of Jesus evidence however does not remove them from the dialectical tension inherent in Johannine theology If the signs are evidence they are evidence in a world in which the basis of forming judgments has been problematized by the appearance of the Word in the flesh
