Engineering Peace Garland H. Williams,2005 In practically all the peacekeeping operations of the 1990s a postconflict reconstruction gap of almost one year separates the end of military peacekeepers mission of halting mass violence from the start of removing mines as well as rebuilding and repairing the host country s physical infrastructure roads and bridges public utilities and buildings In this timely work Colonel Garland Williams analyzes the postconflict reconstruction gap in three case studies Bosnia Kosovo and Afghanistan and shows how military engineering brigades accompanying peacekeeping contingents can be put to use immediately after the conflict ends to restore vital infrastructure and social institutions In the book s concluding chapter Williams proposes changes in U S national security decision making to integrate military engineering brigades into postconflict reconstruction thus making U S military officials less wary of mission creep and nation building

Military Life Thomas W. Britt,Carl Andrew Castro,Amy B. Adler,2005-12-30 With global commitments and combat duty our armed forces face life threatening challenges on a daily basis However less visible threats also impact the mental health of our military men and women Experts examine challenges on the battlefield such as women coming to terms with life after being prisoners of war or soldiers dealing with mistakenly killing civilians But life in the armed forces presents less dramatic daily challenges Away from the front lines soldiers have to raise their families sometimes as single parents Children have to learn what it s like to be in a military family and to make sense of war Gay or lesbian officers cope with a don t ask don t tell policy An unprecedented range of contributors military officers medical doctors psychologists psychiatrists and professors take us onto the bases and the battlefields and inside the minds of military personnel who face far greater challenges than most of us ever see in the headlines These volumes also highlight factors that make members of the military resilient and stable as well as programs and practices that can ease the psychological burdens of military personnel families and children Readers can better understand how society views our military and military operations and how each one of us can play a role in supporting our armed forces

Military Compensation in the Age of Two-income Households Casey Wardynski,2000

When Regular Military Compensation was developed in the early 1960s military household income was synonymous with military pay Today a majority of soldiers spouses are in the labor force Due to the vagaries of military assignment and stationing practices these spouses incur a substantial employment and earnings penalty Heretofore this penalty was attributed to the relatively high rates of migration exhibited by military households Analysis of Current Population Survey data and the 1992 DoD Survey of Officers Enlisted Personnel and their Spouses demonstrate that the spouses of soldiers and airmen incur the heaviest burden of this earnings penalty due to service specific factors These findings have important implications for stationing practices civil service employment policies and military compensation policy Specifically these findings indicate that civilian spouse earnings can serve as a potential channel through which policy can act to enhance military household earnings by improving the employment and wage prospects of soldiers spouses without adverse budgetary consequences In this way military compensation policy can reflect labor market conditions that are likely to prevail into the new millennium rather than those extant at the midpoint of the last century
