Stripped Bare David

Bainbridge,2018-10-09 A lavishly illustrated compendium of the art and history of animal anatomy from antiquity to today For more than two thousand years comparative anatomy the study of anatomical variation among different animal species has been used to make arguments in natural philosophy reinforce religious dogma and remind us of our own mortality This stunningly illustrated compendium traces the intertwined intellectual and artistic histories of comparative anatomy from antiquity to today Stripped Bare brings together some of the most arresting images ever produced from the earliest studies of animal form to the technicolor art of computer generated anatomies David Bainbridge draws on representative illustrations from different eras to discuss the philosophical scientific and artistic milieus from which they emerged He vividly describes the unique aesthetics of each phase of anatomical endeavor providing new insights into the exquisite anatomical drawings of Leonardo and Albrecht Dürer in the era before printing Jean H. Roudot's cutting and cataloging of the horse during the age of Louis XIII the exotic pictorial menageries of the Comte de Buffon in the eighteenth century anatomical illustrations from Charles Darwin's voyages the lavish symmetries of Ernst Haeckel's prints and much much more Featuring a wealth of breathtaking color illustrations throughout Stripped Bare is a panoramic tour of the intricacies of vertebrate life as well as an expansive history of the peculiar and beautiful ways humans have attempted to study and understand the natural world

Artistic Anatomy of Animals Édouard Cuyer,2026-01-27 A few lines will suffice to explain why we have compiled the present volume to what wants it responds and what its sphere of usefulness may possibly embrace In our teaching of plastic anatomy especially at the cole des Beaux Arts where for the past nine years we have had the very great honour of supplementing the teaching of our distinguished master Mathias Duval after having been prosector for his course of lectures since 1881 it is our practice to give as a complement to the study of human anatomy a certain number of lessons on the anatomy of those animals which artists might be called on to represent Now we were given to understand that the subject treated in our lectures interested our hearers so much so that we were not surprised to learn that a certain number repeatedly expressed a desire to see these lectures united in book form douard Cuyer GENERALITIES OF COMPARATIVE ANATOMY Of the animals by which we are surrounded there are some which occupying a place in our lives by reason of their natural endowments are frequently represented in the works of artists either as accompanying man in his work or in his amusements

repeatedly expressed a desire to see these lectures united in book form douard Cuyer GENERALITIES OF COMPARATIVE ANATOMY Of the animals by which we are surrounded there are some which occupying a place in our lives by reason of their natural endowments are frequently represented in the works of artists either as accompanying man in his work or in his amusements or as intended to occupy the whole interest of the composition The necessity of knowing from an artistic point of view the structure of the human body makes clear the importance we attach from the same point of view to the study of the anatomy of animals that is the study of comparative anatomy The name employed to designate this branch of anatomy shows that the object of this science is the study of the relative position and form which each region presents in all organized beings taking for comparison the corresponding regions in man The head in animals compared with the human head the trunk and limbs compared to the trunk and limbs of the human being this is the analysis we undertake and the plan of the subject we are about to commence Our intention being as we have just said the comparison of the structure of animals with that of man should we describe the anatomy of the human being in the pages which follow We do not think so Plastic human anatomy having been previously studied in special works we take it for granted that these have been studied before undertaking the subject of comparative anatomy We will therefore not occupy time with the elementary facts relative to the skeleton and the superficial layer of muscles We will not dilate on the division of the bones into long short large single paired etc All these preliminary elements we shall suppose to have been already studied This being granted it is nevertheless necessary to take a rapid bird s eye view of organized beings and to recall the terms used in their classification Animals are primarily classed in great divisions based on the general characters which differentiate them most These divisions or branches allow of their being so grouped that in each of them we find united the individuals whose general structure is uniform and under the name of vertebrates are included man and the animals with which our studies will be occupied The vertebrates as the name indicates are recognised by the presence of an interior skeleton formed by a central axis the vertebral column round which the other parts of the skeleton are arranged The vertebrate branch is divided into classes fishes amphibians or batrachians reptiles birds and mammals
