Merback, 2018-02-09 A deft reinterpretation of the most zealously interpreted picture in the Western canon as a therapeutic artifact Albrecht Dürer's famous portrayal of creative effort in paralysis the unsurpassed masterpiece of copperplate engraving titled Melencolia I has stood for centuries as a pictorial summa of knowledge about the melancholic temperament a dense allegory of the limits of earthbound arts and sciences and the impossibility of attaining perfection Dubbed the image of images for being the most zealously interpreted picture in the Western canon Melencolia I also presides over the origins of modern iconology art history's own science of meaning Yet we are left with a clutter of mutually contradictory theories a historiographic ruin that confirms the mood of its object In Perfection's Therapy Mitchell Merback reopens the case file and argues for a hidden intentionality in Melencolia I's opacity its structural chaos and its resistance to allegorical closure That intentionality he argues points toward a fascinating possibility never before considered that Dürer's masterpiece is not only an arresting diagnosis of melancholic distress but an innovative instrument for its undoing Merback deftly resituates Dürer's image within the long history of the therapeutic artifact Placing Dürer's therapeutic project in dialogue with that of humanism's founder Francesco Petrarca Merback also unearths Dürer's ambition to act as a physician of the soul Celebrated as the Apelles of the black line in his own day and ever since as Germany's first Renaissance painter theorist the Dürer we encounter here is also the first modern Christian artist addressing himself to the distress of souls including his own Melencolia I thus emerges as a key reference point in a venture of spiritual ethical therapy a work designed to exercise the mind restore the body's equilibrium and help in getting on with the undertaking of perfection
