New Perspectives on Foreign Aid and Economic Development B. Mak Arvin, 2002-05-30 The success or failure of economic assistance programs is a shared responsibility of recipient countries and donors The negative attitude about aid prevalent today underscores a perception the aid has failed Critics often blame corrupt regimes weak governments or poor economic policies However the poor track record of aid is also due to donors inability to allocate limited funds effectively and poor coordination of their aid efforts Declining aid budgets have led to fundamental questioning of foreign aid s allocation and utility while the apparent ineffectiveness of aid has shrunk aid budgets and turned public opinion against providing it This edited collection containing pieces written by leading development specialists evaluates these emerging questions of allocation and efficiency Development economists policy makers and development specialists will benefit from reading this work Chapters examine the optimal and intertemporal allocation of aid the role and accountability of NGOs in allocation the importance of untying a new perspective on low levels of aid and links between the allocation pattern of donors Additional chapters deal with the impact of aid on economic growth democracy wage inequality between skilled and unskilled labor and the role of governance and institutional capacity in aid effectiveness An effective balance between theoretical and empirical models is offered to better illustrate the issues involved Accountability Online Ting Wang,2013 As the programs and services of nonprofit organizations in international development are considered more cost effective than those of government and business organizations international development nonprofit organizations are a crucial part of the social economic and political landscape of the United States However public trust toward nonprofit organizations is generally low because of the insufficient accountability among such organizations Therefore it is vital for international development nonprofit organizations to demonstrate their accountability to their stakeholders Stakeholder management theory and autonomy and accountability theory address this issue The purpose of this study was to examine the extent to which international development nonprofit organizations demonstrate accountability to different stakeholders specifically donors beneficiaries government and boards of directors by conducting a content analysis of the websites of the 102 largest international development nonprofit organizations in the United States The study also examined the organizations practical and strategic accountability and the relationship between accountability and organizational size

Organizational Development Series ,1966 Non-governmental Organisations Michael Edwards,David Hulme,1995 First Published in 1995 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company The Politics of Urban Development Clarence Nathan Stone,Heywood T. Sanders,1987 In the past twenty years the study of urban politics has shifted from a predominant concern with political culture and ethos to a preoccupation with political economy particularly that of urban development Urban scholars have come to recognize that cities are shaped by forces beyond their boundaries From that focus have emerged the views that cities are clearly engaged in economic competition that market processes are shaped by national policy decisions sometimes intentionally and sometimes inadvertently and that the costs and benefits of economic growth are unevenly distributed But what else needs to be said about the policies and politics of urban development To supplement prevailing theories The Politics of Urban Development argues that the role of local actors in making development decisions merits closer study Whatever the structural constraints politics still matters Collectively the essays provide ample evidence that local government officials and other community actors do not simply follow the imperatives that derive from the national political economy they are able to assert a significant degree of influence over the shared destiny of an urban population The impact of the collection is to heighten awareness of local political practices and of how and why they make a difference Staff Development in Human Service Organizations Harvey J. Bertcher,1988

Development as a Human Right Bård-Anders Andreassen,Stephen P. Marks,2010 This 2nd edition of the book originally published in 2006 has a new Foreword by the UN Commissioner for Human Rights Navanethem Pillay

Mukhopadhyay, Shamim Meer, 2008 This is an area that needs considerable research and this publication explores some of the key issues at stake The Development of National Administrative Organization in the United States Lloyd Milton Short, 1923 Debating NGO Accountability Jem Bendell, 2006 Concerns about the role and accountability of NGOs have been voiced from different quarters in recent years Some donors governments corporations and international agencies raise important questions about the effectiveness of NGO work and the legitimacy of their advocacy Some NGOs have also recognized the need to ensure good practice in the wider voluntary sector For this emerging agenda to lead to positive development outcomes we need to ask what initiatives will improve the accountability of all institutions to the people whose lives they shape and what initiatives could serve merely to undermine NGOs useful and largely accepted role in holding business and government accountable for their actions This publication puts democracy and human rights at the centre of the debate about NGO accountability Career Development in the Federal Public Service Linda Elizabeth Duxbury, Lorraine S. Dyke, Natalie Lam, 1999 Manual of Staff Development Lori Rodriguez, 1996 The MANUAL OF STAFF DEVELOPMENT is a practical resource that provides staff development educators and administrators with a compendium of useful tools and techniques to meet the rapidly changing professional development needs of their staff Drawn from hospitals through the U S and Canada the materials address such crucial and diverse activities as staff development certification finance quality marketing instructional design needs assessment program planning orientation preceptorship in service education competence assessment and evaluation This resource enables the staff development educator to benefit from the expertise and experience of numerous staff development experts saving the time and money required creating these programs and materials
