Zwaan, 2005-01-10 One of the key questions in cognitive psychology is how people represent knowledge about concepts such as football or love Some researchers have proposed that concepts are represented in human memory by the sensorimotor systems that underlie interaction with the outside world These theories represent developments in cognitive science to view cognition no longer in terms of abstract information processing but in terms of perception and action In other words cognition is grounded in embodied experiences Studies show that sensory perception and motor actions support understanding of words and object concepts Moreover even understanding of abstract and emotion concepts can be shown to rely on more concrete embodied experiences Finally language itself can be shown to be grounded in sensorimotor processes This book brings together theoretical arguments and empirical evidence from several key researchers in this field to support this framework The Science of Lay Theories Claire M. Zedelius, Barbara C. N. Müller, Jonathan W. Schooler, 2017-07-14 This timely and
