Learning Race, Learning Place Erin N. Winkler, 2012-11-15 In an American society both increasingly diverse and increasingly segregated the signals children receive about race are more confusing than ever In this context how do children negotiate and make meaning of multiple and conflicting messages to develop their own ideas about race Learning Race Learning Place engages this question using in depth interviews with an economically diverse group of African American children and their mothers Through these rich narratives Erin N Winkler seeks to reorient the way we look at how children develop their ideas about race through the introduction of a new framework comprehensive racial learning that shows the importance of considering this process from children's points of view and listening to their interpretations of their experiences which are often quite different from what the adults around them expect or intend At the children's prompting Winkler examines the roles of multiple actors and influences including gender skin tone colorblind rhetoric peers family media school and especially place She brings to the fore the complex and understudied power of place positing that while children's racial identities and experiences are shaped by a national construction of race they are also specific to a particular place that exerts both direct and indirect influence on their racial identities and ideas University of California

Teens Choosing to Read Gay Ivey, Peter Johnston, 2023 In a sea of troubling reporting about education teaching reading and the wellbeing of teens Ivey and Johnston bring some good news that shows what happens when we stop underestimating young people This accessible book offers an engaging account of a 4 year study of adolescents who went from reluctant to enthusiastic readers These youth reported that reading not only helped them manage their stress but also helped them negotiate happier more meaningful lives This amazing transformation occurred when their teachers simply allowed them to select their own books invited them to read with no strings attached and provided time for them to do so These students nearly all of whom reported a previously negative relationship with reading began to read voraciously inside and outside of school performed better on state tests and transformed their personal relational emotional and moral lives in the process This illuminating book leads readers on a tour of adolescents reading lives in their own words offering a long overdue analysis of students deep engagement with literature The text also includes research to inform arguments about what students should and should not read and the consequences of limiting students access to the books that interest them through censorship Book Features Links young adults reading engagement with socio emotional and intellectual development Provides nuanced descriptions of teaching practices that facilitate student agency in learning Features student voices that have been absent in debates about what is appropriate for young people to read and under what circumstances Connects student perspectives on reading with positive outcomes of reading to research from other disciplines Illuminates the breadth and depth of the responsibilities of teaching English language arts
