Cigarettes and Sunrise Darrell Marcus, 2005-07-20 She is just sitting there drinking her coffee She does not notice much of anything that is going on around her Right behind her sits a man possibly the love of a lifetime only two feet away and she does not even know it He looks up from his book from time to time first looking around in order to appear not to be paying attention to her taking a sip of coffee staring at the blackness within the mug not his soul and then finally after appearances have been saved looking her way in the end and back down at his book again Chance it calls to you daily what a waste What am I doing with my self what am I aiming towards what do I want to do is there really a point to all this these things I do Probably not but it will all be okay all I need to do is stop every now and again stop and just pay attention Getting up from my seat placing the mug I have been drinking from on the counter a smile to the barrista or whatever the hell they re called I begin walking out the door Official Gazette of the United States Patent and Trademark Office ,2005

Letters ,1927 The Master Plant Andrew Russell,Elizabeth Rahman,2020-06-03 Described as a master plant by many indigenous groups in lowland South America tobacco is an essential part of shamanic ritual as well as a source of everyday health wellbeing and community In sharp contrast to the condemnation of the tobacco industry and its place in contemporary public health discourse the book considers tobacco in a more nuanced light as an agent both of enlightenment and destruction Exploring the role of tobacco in the lives of indigenous peoples The Master Plant offers an important and unique contribution to this field of study through its focus on lowland South America the historical source region of this controversial plant yet rarely discussed in recent scholarship The ten chapters in this collection bring together ethnographic accounts key developments in anthropological theory and emergent public health responses to indigenous tobacco use Moving from a historical study of tobacco usage covering the initial domestication of wild varieties and its value as a commodity in colonial times to an examination of the transcendent properties of tobacco and the magic symbolism and healing properties associated with it the authors present wide ranging perspectives on the history and cultural significance of this important plant The final part of the book examines the changing landscape of tobacco use in these communities today set against the backdrop of the increasing power of the national and transnational tobacco industry The first critical overview of tobacco and its uses across lowland South America this book encourages new ways of thinking about the problems of commercially exploited tobacco both within and beyond this source region
