The Theatre of the Self Robert James Belton, 1999 From the Introduction Common knowledge has it that Ronald is primarily a historical figure whose contribution to Canadian art lies in the formation of the free thinking Painters Eleven in the 1950s This is correct enough but concomitant with it is the tacit assumption that his choice to downplay painting temporarily for a career in broadcasting implies that his later years were substantially a matter of showmanship and or charlatanism Ronald is one of the more genuinely fascinating characters in Canadian culture one to whom we are indebted for much more than a spirit of internationalism running counter to what was thought of in the 1950s as the choke hold of the Group of Seven

Screening the World Stuart Hanson, 2019-07-26 This book charts the development of the multiplex cinema as the pre eminent form of film exhibition across the world Going from its origins in the USA in the 1960s to its expansion overseas from the mid 1980s across Europe Australia and other parts of Asia Pacific the book considers the emergence of a series of initially regional then national and then international exhibition circuits However more than a consideration of US overseas expansion on the part of companies this book examines the hegemony of the multiplex as a cultural and business form arguing for its significance as a phenomenon that has transcended national and global boundaries and which has become the predominant venue for film viewing Implicit in this analysis is a recognition of the domination of US media multi nationals and Hollywood cinema and the development of the multiplex cinema as symbolic of the extension and maintenance of the USA s cultural and economic power With case studies ranging from European countries such as Belgium France Germany and The Netherlands to Pacific Asian countries such as Australia China Japan and South Korea this book is the first to explore the development of multiplexes on a global scale
