

“Dick King-Smith was a genius for many generations, deciding to make a complete change and become a teacher, the very teacher in a primary school near Bath. He is married with three growing children and says that he would do his children's proud. The Fox Busters is aimed for other granddads.”

By the same author:

THE FOX BUSTERS

“Happy books for children are rare. What volume does in The Fox Busters, a good, humorous story with sound characterization and an ability to be funny without undue reliance on ‘whimsicality’.” Times Literary Supplement

“A sparkling read-up. The style is entirely a child's delight for its early original ease and the treatment dealt with which it is prepared and amused.” Growing Point

Mrs. Bachelors is horrified by the news that her latest son contains a dog—a wedding of a paper with strongly irregular fat. But after the unfortunate escape from an early and spontaneous death at the hands of the Pigman, the dog assumes a unique and favored position in the class.

The mother is convinced that her baby's strange fate has been given to him for some special purpose and as time she is proved right. With the help of Felicity the Mink, Frank and Frank the Otter, Daggie not only becomes the only remaining dog in existence, but a vital teacher and the highly unusual form of locomotion. Well, you might try!

The ingenious and amusing poem, by the author of The Fox Busters, is illustrated with lovely line drawings by the author's wife, Mary Rogers.
