Comprehensive Land Claims Policy:

Comprehensive Land Claims Policy Canada. Indian and Northern Affairs Canada, 1987 Booklet which sets out the elements of the revised federal comprehensive land claims policy as presented in the House of Commons on December 18 1986 Organized in six main sections objectives scope of negotiations self government involvement of provincial and territorial governments protection of aboriginal and non aboriginal interests and procedures Comprehensive Land Claims Policy Canada. Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, 1987 Details of revised Canadian land claims policy which was first announced in December 1986 Covers objectives scope of negotiations self government involvement of provincial and territorial governments protection of aboriginal and non aboriginal interests and procedures to be followed in submitting and negotiating the settlement of land claims Renewing the Comprehensive Land Claims Policy, 2014 Constitutional Crossroads Kate Puddister, Emmett Macfarlane, 2022-12-01 Four decades have passed since the adoption of the Constitution Act 1982 Now it is time to assess its legacy As Constitutional Crossroads makes clear the 1982 constitutional package raises a host of questions about a number of important issues including identity and pluralism the scope and limits of rights competing constitutional visions the relationship between the state and Indigenous peoples and the nature of constitutional change This collection brings together an impressive assembly of established and rising stars of political science and law who not only provide a robust account of the 1982 reform but also analyze the ensuing scholarship that has shaped our understanding of the Constitution Contributors bypass historical description to offer reflective analyses of different aspects of Canada's constitution as it is understood in the twenty first century With a focus on the themes of rights reconciliation and constitutional change Constitutional Crossroads provides profound insights into institutional relationships public policy and the state of the fields of law and politics The Colonial Problem Lisa Monchalin, 2016-01-01 In The Colonial Problem Lisa Monchalin challenges the myth of the Indian problem and encourages readers to view the crimes and injustices affecting Indigenous peoples from a more culturally aware position Aboriginal Law, Fourth Edition Thomas Isaac, 2012-08-15 Thomas Isaac looks at the broad picture of trends that are developing in the law and the background highlighting aspects of Canadian law that impact Aboriginal peoples and their relationship with the wider Canadian society While covering issues such as Aboriginal and treaty rights constitutional issues land claims self government provincial and federal roles the rights of the Métis and the Indian Act this book pays particular attention to the Crown's duty to consult The Supreme Court of Canada has clearly stated that achieving reconciliation between Aboriginal interests with the needs of Canadian society as a whole lies primarily with governments which Isaac outlines Transforming the Nation Raymond B. Blake, 2007-08-20 In Transforming the Nation leading Canadian politicians and scholars reflect on the major policy debates of the period and offer new and surprising interpretations of Brian Mulroney Mulroney had a tremendous impact on Canada charting a new direction for the country through his decisions on a variety of public policy issues free trade with the United States social security reform foreign policy and Canada's North The Mulroney government represented a dramatic break with Canada's past

Living Treaties, Lasting Agreements Canada. Task Force to Review Comprehensive Claims Policy, 1985 Traces the background of aboriginal claims agreements in Canadian history and law and analyses the new constitutional context in which contemporary landclaims policy must be made Includes sections on self government and northern political development

Aboriginal Peoples and Forest Lands in Canada D.B. Tindall, Ronald Trosper, Pamela Perreault, 2013-02-11 Aboriginal people in Canada have long struggled to regain control over their traditional forest lands Aboriginal Peoples and Forest Lands in Canada brings together the diverse perspectives of Aboriginals and non Aboriginals to address the political cultural environmental and economic implications of forest use This book discusses the need for professionals working in forestry and conservation to understand the context of Aboriginal participation in resource management It also addresses the importance of researching traditional knowledge and traditional land use and examines the development of co management initiatives and joint ventures between government forestry companies and Aboriginal communities

The Nisga'a Final Agreement Mary C. Hurley, 2001 This paper outlines the historical background to the Nisga'a Final Agreement selected Final Agreement provisions issues of concern arising during the ratification process the ratification process itself and judicial proceedings related to the Final Agreement It is intended to provide a general overview of these elements and does not purport to provide an exhaustive analysis of any of them

Competing Claims, Uncertain Sovereignties Steven Mitchell Cohn, 2001 The 1993 Yukon Land Claims Treaty presumes new types of cooperative arrangements between First Nation Territorial and Federal governments to address pervasive problems of aboriginal inequity The explicit focus is the development of First Nation sovereignty authority and economic self sufficiency within Canadian federalism These arrangements have developed in a few situations but the overall pattern is towards diminished intergovernmental cooperation undermining the extent to which treaties are actually achieving the presumed intentions Why is this so The reasons arise in the comprehensive forces within and upon the Canadian federation Opportunities for First Nation self determination formed at a time of rising Territorial provincial aspirations and national insecurities Needs of other actors at national regional and local scales converged in the First Nation settlement and related issues of sovereignty and development Actual implementation reflects the proportion of the purposeful intent leaving untouched and perhaps strengthening existing structures of Federal territorial control The analysis addresses historical development of structural patterns interaction between local and external forces institutions and organizational divisions and institutional arrangements that arise to balance diverse interests in an unstable policy environment Narrowly construed trilateral relationships of sovereignty and development between federal provincial and U S market actors overwhelm Aboriginal interest Federal weakness contributes to bureaucratic autonomy entrenching bilateral relationships of unequal power that historically subordinate First Nations Pervasive patterns of internal fragmentation that shape the actions of governments dampen intergovernmental relations Conflict emerges at the margin between overlapping sovereignties The new First Nation map formalizes these boundaries prescribing the spatial arena where these conflicts are displayed and actualized Despite these structural impediments First Nation Territorial and Federal governments are evolving tripartite federalist institutions to soften the impact and broaden the range of devolution measures Diverse and incremental forums increase exchange between actors build a collective governance capacity and foster resilience to destabilizing external forces Small initiatives begin to blanket the Yukon landscape with more complex forms of interdependence raising the cost of unilateral instinctual territorial action and creating an incentive for mutually reinforcing governance Collective strength contributes to the development of Canadian federalism as a whole Leaves 1 2
