Mode de financement agricole et rural en Afrique subsaharienne Dieudonné Kabongo Kabongo,2025-01-02 L'amélioration des secteurs de l'agriculture et de l'agroalimentaire en Afrique est essentielle pour renforcer la compétitivité du continent sur le marché mondial L'un des principaux facteurs de croissance de l'agriculture réside dans l'accès des moyens financiers adaptés Cependant la problématique du financement agricole reste l'un des plus grands d

fis auxquels les pays africains sont confrontés Le milieu rural en Afrique est marqué par de nombreuses difficultés notamment l'accès limité des paysans aux financements nécessaires pour leurs activités économiques La finance pratiquée dans ces milieux est souvent informelle car les paysans généralement pauvres sont perçus comme des clients à risque par les institutions bancaires classiques faute de garanties suffisantes Compte tenu du caractère saisonnier et imprévisible des productions agricoles il est crucial de disposer de crédits adaptés pour soutenir les investissements dans ce secteur En République démocratique du Congo RDC bien que l'accès au financement soit une condition essentielle pour la modernisation de l'agriculture les prêts accordés par les institutions financières formelles ce secteur restent minoritaires voire inexistantes Les spécificités de l'agriculture appellent une approche sur mesure et des moyens adaptés pour répondre ces besoins Il est impératif d'agir rapidement notamment en RDC où la croissance de la productivité agricole est plus lente que dans les autres régions du monde
