Significant amounts of our time and energy are devoted to creating managing and avoiding information Computers and telecommunications technology have extended our regard for information and are driving changes in how we learn work and play One result of these developments is that skills and strategies for storing and retrieving information have become more essential and more pervasive in our culture This book considers how electronic technologies have changed these skills and strategies and augmented the fundamental human activity of information seeking The author makes a case for creating new interface designs that allow the information seeker to choose what strategy to apply according to their immediate needs Such systems may be designed by providing information seekers with alternative interface mechanisms for displaying and manipulating multiple levels of representation for information objects Information Seeking in Electronic Environments is
