Nagel,1993-06-30 The essence of decision aiding software is that it consists of various forms of microcomputer programming designed to enable users to process a set of 1 goals to be achieved 2 alternatives available for achieving them and 3 relations between goals and alternatives in order to choose the best alternative combination allocation or predictive decision rule Benefits from using decision aiding software include 1 being more explicit about goals to be achieved alternatives available for achieving them and relations between goals and alternatives 2 being stimulated to think of more goals alternatives and relations than one would otherwise be likely to do 3 being prepared to handle multiple goals alternatives and relations without getting confused and without feeling the need to resort to a single composite goal or a single go no go alternative 4 being encouraged to experiment with changes in the inputs into one s thinking to see how one s conclusions are affected and 5 being better able to achieve or exceed one s goals when choosing among alternatives or allocating scarce resources There are five parts to the book covering 1 a broad overview of decision aiding packages including criteria for evaluating them 2 approaches that are based on management science and operations research including linear programming and decision trees 3 spreadsheet based software generally with goals on the columns alternatives on the rows relations in the cells overall totals for each alternative at the far right and a capability for indicating how the totals would be altered as a result of changes in the inputs 4 expert systems software including rule based and knowledge based expert systems and 5 general applications of decision aiding software and a discussion of the increasing utilization of such software Computer Aided Decision Support in Telecommunications Phil G. Flavin,Ken A.E. Totton,2012-12-06 In bringing together this book the editors have kept two goals in mind Firstly the goal of educating the reader by giving an insight into the wealth of computing and mathematical techniques now being used to build decision support systems Secondly of aiming to stimulate the imagination by including an eclectic mix of contributions from a wide range of business areas to demonstrate that there is no field in which modern decision support techniques cannot usefully be applied The quintessence of decision support systems is that they are designed to assist people in establishing the best course of action in a given situation but not to automate or tell them prescriptively how to achieve a goal Computer Aided Design Decision Making L. Sun Woh,1986 Computer-aided Decision Making for Strategic Business Portfolio Decisions V. Srinivasan,1983 The Use of Computer-Aided Decision Support Systems for Complex Source Selection Decisions Caisson M. Vickery,AIR FORCE INST OF TECH WRIGHT-PATTERSON AFB OH SCHOOL OF SYSTEMS AND LOGISTIC S.,1989 In the critical arena of source selections the decision maker is often overwhelmed by the complex hierarchy of intertwining factors and multitude of conflicting tasks required to successfully purchase an effective weapons system At this time there is no available tool with which to assimilate contributing criteria into an organized framework to aid in the decision making process A decision support system DSS acts as the framework upon which the complex elements may be organized The purpose of this research is to test the use of a computer aided decision support system in the source selection environment Through a controlled experiment the use of a DSS was tested for the following variables 1 Effectiveness This was defined as the number of correct decisions made 2 Consistency This was defined as how many of the same decisions were made 3 Speed Did the use of the DSS speed the process 4 Difficulty How easy was it to make the decision 5 Confidence How confident was the decision maker that his decision was correct 6 Understanding How well did the subject understand the process by which the decision was made Theses   Computer aided decision making: analysis of a firm Lait Alias Kutir,1991   A Computer-aided Decision Support System for Making Locational Decisions ,1990 Project developed a computerized system to support decisions about how to locate facilities that serve rural areas while minimizing transportation costs   ICEMBDA 2023 Jianguo Liu,Haifeng Li,Sikandar Ali Qalati,2024-01-19 The 4th International Conference on Economic Management and Big Data Applications was successfully held in Tianjin China from October 27th to 29th 2023 This conference served as a platform for researchers scholars and industry professionals to exchange knowledge and insights in the field of economic management and the application of big data The conference held great significance in advancing the understanding and application of economic management and big data By bringing together experts from around the globe the conference facilitated the exchange of innovative ideas and research findings contributing to the development of these fields The topics covered during the conference showcased the latest advancements and trends in enterprise economic statistics information evaluation blockchain technology industrial structure optimization information retrieval data regression analysis intelligent Internet of Things platforms and data encryption The discussions and presentations during the conference allowed participants to explore new methodologies strategies and technologies that can enhance economic management practices and leverage the potential of big data The conference provided a platform for scholars and practitioners to share their experiences insights and best practices fostering collaboration and networking opportunities Furthermore the proceedings were published ensuring the dissemination of valuable research findings to a wider audience The collective knowledge and research presented at the conference will contribute to the academic community industry professionals and policymakers enabling them to make informed decisions and develop effective strategies in the fields of economic management and big data applications Overall the 4th International Conference on Economic Management and Big Data Applications played a pivotal role in promoting knowledge exchange fostering innovation and shaping the future of economic management by harnessing the power of big data
