Computer Supported Collaborative Writing Mike Sharples,2012-12-06 M Sharples 1 1 The Collaborative Tradition Collaborative writing is nothing new The description below is from the introduction to a book published in 1911 Every page however has been debated and passed by the three of us Our usual method has been first to pick up a subject that interested us perhaps a subject we had been talking about for a long while then to discuss it and argue over it ashore and afloat in company and by ourselves till we came to our joint conclusion Then on a rough day in a set to discussion I would take down notes which frequently amounted in length to more than half the finished article From the notes I would make a rough draft which after more discussion would be re written and again after revision typewritten We would go through the printer s proofs together and finally after reading the matter in print we have once more revised it for book publication Collaboration could not be more thorough Reynolds et al 1911 p x The book Seems So A Working class View of Politics was written by an aca demic working closely with two fishermen   A Framework for the Study of Computer Supported Collaborative Writing ,1991   The Use of Audio and Video in Synchronous Computer-supported Collaborative Writing ,2004   A Web-based Computer Supported Collaborative Writing System Xin Bi,2002   Studies of Computer Supported Collaborative Writing ,2002   Computer Support for Collaborative Learning Gerry Stahl,2002 Proceedings of CSCL 2002 meeting in Boulder Colorado January 7 11 2002   Knowledge Building Using Wikis in a Computer-supported Collaborative Writing Task Jeong Won Woo,2011 The purpose of this study was to investigate how Scardamalia s 2002 socio cognitive determinants of knowledge building emerge in a computer supported collaborative writing task and to understand students perceptions of knowledge building experience and the use of tools including wikis to support the collaborative writing process The setting of this study was a graduate level online course on Computer Supported Collaborative Learning CSCL in which all course activities were conducted collaboratively in an online environment Data sources included transcripts of online inputs in the wiki areas interviews with 15 participants participants reflective journals transcripts of asynchronous online discussions and synchronous chats Data were analyzed using content analysis for the transcripts of wiki areas and grounded theory approach Strauss Corbin 1998 was used in the analysis of data from the interviews Results of the data analysis indicated that the three groups in this study participated in the collaborative knowledge building activity in different ways The three factors that influenced their participation in the activity included group dynamics collaborative writing task and collaborative writing tools These factors interacted with each another and impacted their knowledge building discourse in the following ways improvable ideas constructive use of authoritative sources epistemic agency and embedded and transformative assessment As a result of their engagement in knowledge building discourse participants successfully completed the collaborative writing project and shared a strong sense of community and co ownership of the knowledge product The findings of this study may shed light on the strategies and environmental factors that encourage knowledge building discourse as well as the synergetic
