Humans Versus Nature Daniel R. Headrick, 2020 Since the appearance of Homo sapiens on the planet hundreds of thousands of years ago human beings have sought to exploit their environments extracting as many resources as their technological ingenuity has allowed As technologies have advanced in recent centuries that impulse has remained largely unchecked exponentially accelerating the human impact on the environment Humans versus Nature tells a history of the global environment from the Stone Age to the present emphasizing the adversarial relationship between the human and natural worlds Nature is cast as an active protagonist rather than a mere backdrop or victim of human malfeasance Daniel R. Headrick shows how environmental changes epidemics climate shocks and volcanic eruptions have molded human societies and cultures sometimes overwhelming them At the same time he traces the history of anthropogenic changes in the environment species extinctions global warming deforestation and resource depletion back to the age of hunters and gatherers and the first farmers and herders He shows how human interventions such as irrigation systems over fishing and the Industrial Revolution have in turn harmed the very societies that initiated them Throughout Headrick examines how human driven environmental changes are interwoven with larger global systems dramatically reshaping the complex relationship between people and the natural world In doing so he roots the current environmental crisis in the deep past

Empire of Brutality Christopher Michael Blakley, 2023 Christopher Blakley's Empire of Brutality is a human animal history of slaving and slavery in the Atlantic World between the end of the seventeenth century and the abolition of the Atlantic trade in 1808 His multidisciplinary study examines how varied relationships between enslaved people and animals led to the dehumanization and racialization of people of African descent in the Americas Blakley discusses the role of animal exchanges among slavers in West Africa the knowledge and curiosity of enslaved specimen collectors in the Atlantic world regimes of labor on Caribbean and Chesapeake plantations and the forms of resistance that enslaved people engaged in by injuring killing stealing and thinking about animals His analysis provides a better understanding of why enslaved people emphasized in their writing how slaveholders compared them to animals suggesting that critiques of slavery as dehumanizing by people of African descent were to a marked degree the result of these material human animal networks and linkages Blakley's study brings together disparate geographies including the castle trade in Atlantic Africa slave depots in New Spain and plantations in the British Caribbean and Chesapeake worlds to build on the emerging literature of human animal studies and new scholarship in early American environmental history His work is among the first to approach human animal networks under slavery systematically and comprehensively It makes a significant contribution by historicizing human animal relations produced by Atlantic wide networks of slavery It also provides an analysis of these linkages that over time led to the racialization and dehumanization of people of African descent as animal like subjects In this way his work offers an important environmental and material basis for the rich scholarship on the ideological and intellectual origins of race and racism It also illuminates the divergent affective responses of enslaved people towards animals ranging from curiosity to disgust and empathy
