

America's Choice: high skills or low wages!

"This report challenges all Americans to confront the specific educational needs of the American workforce. Without doubt, it is one of the most significant analyses to emerge in the debate over our international competitive position. I have asked the National Center on Education and the Economy to prepare immediately a blueprint for the application of the Commission's recommendations in New York State."

Marion M. Cassano, Governor, State of New York

"... a landmark report [that provides] a comprehensive plan to address the nation's economic needs as well as to prepare American youth to be full participants in an evolving global economy. The recommendations in America's Choice deserve the serious attention of every American concerned about our economic future."

"We must now create a national imperative to set a course for educational change that will realize the goals of this report."

David T. Keenan, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Xerox Corporation

"This timely report vividly describes the crisis in the nation's workforce. More importantly, it presents provocative proposals that, taken together, surely will contribute richly to the debate about how to smooth the transition from school to work and strengthen the economic vitality of the nation."

Ernest Lohrman, President, The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching

"This is a unique and valuable study; it offers new information and new solutions that will raise America's consciousness level, spur public debate, and increase our national will to solve this crisis. Public officials and private citizens, leaders from business, labor and education can - and will - all benefit from the Commission's work ... a most important contribution."

Elizabeth Doherty, Secretary, United States Department of Labor

"... the most significant report of the whole reform movement. In terms of breadth, accuracy and complexity, it has no match."

Albert S. Blumberg, President, American Federation of Teachers

Rothstein,2008-12-14 Yes we should hold public schools accountable for effectively spending the vast funds with which they have been entrusted But accountability policies like No Child Left Behind based exclusively on math and reading test scores have narrowed the curriculum misidentified both failing and successful schools and established irresponsible expectations for what schools can accomplish Instead of just grading progress in one or two narrow subjects we should hold schools accountable for the broad outcomes we expect from public education basic knowledge and skills critical thinking an appreciation of the arts physical and emotional health and preparation for skilled employment and then develop the means to measure and ensure schools success in achieving them Grading Education describes a new kind of accountability plan for public education one that relies on higher quality testing focuses on professional evaluation and builds on capacities we already possess This important resource Describes the design of an alternative accountability system that would not corrupt education as does NCLB and its state testing systems Explains the original design of NAEP in the 1960s and shows why it should be revived Defines the broad goals of education beyond math and reading test scores and reports on surveys to confirm public and governmental support for such goals Relates these broad goals of education to the desire for accountability in education Consumer Economic Issues in America E. Thomas Garman,1997
