

PREFACE

Cost accountancy has the reputation of being hard to learn and hard to teach. It is so probably because it is a highly specialized subject requiring an in depth understanding of its complex concepts and techniques. This module is an attempt to alleviate this problem by providing the students with thorough grounding in cost concept, cost behavior, costing methods and techniques and with an understanding of the uses and limitation of cost data for planning and control process.

The module has been divided into eight chapters in a systematic manner from 'the concept of management' to 'joint products and by- products' with adequate emphasis on all important aspects of cost accounting. On the whole, our approach has been simple, easy to understand and full of illustration including diagrammatic presentation. We hope our understanding of the subject and teaching experience is well reflected in a systematic presentation of the subject. The subject matter has been organized on 'first things first' and to sustain the students' interest.

Questions and problems given in the modules have been thus selected based on information disclosed in the module. Quite a good number of typical problems have also been worked out in each chapter. More over, objective type questions like true or false statements, fill in the blanks, etc have been given under the heading self-test questions.

On the whole, we feel that this material would prove to be useful to both the students and teachers of the subject in various universities.

Comments and suggestions from all quarters are welcome.
