Hostile Takeovers of Large Jewish Companies, 1933-1935 William M. Katin, 2020-10-28 Opportunism combined with anti-Semitism led non-Nazi businessmen to acquire the largest German Jewish companies in the period 1933-1935. These hostile takeovers were made possible by the Deutsche Bank and Dresdner Bank which recalled loans previously extended to Jewish firms. Thereby Germany's largest banks obtained new loan fees, new supervisory board seats and became the house banks for the new Gentile-owned firms. The German judiciary did not defend Jewish property rights because judges shared the same conservative mindset. Scholarship has previously not discovered this 1933-1935 paradigm because of a focus on Berlin government or Nazi Party actions instead of the Jewish companies. In addition, a failure to distinguish between multi-million-dollar enterprises and tiny shops caused scholars to emphasize the year 1938 when thousands of mom and pop shops became bankrupt.

The Ordensburg Vogelsang Franz Albert Heinen, 2014 New Political Ideas in the Aftermath of the Great War Alessandro Salvador, Anders G. Kjølseth, 2016-11-10 This edited collection presents new research on how the Great War and its aftermath shaped political thought in the interwar period across Europe. Assessing the major players of the war as well as more peripheral cases, the contributors challenge previous interpretations of the relationship between veterans and fascism and provide new perspectives on how veterans tried to promote a new political and social order. Those who had frontline experience of the First World War committed themselves to constructing a new political and social order in war-torn Europe shaped by their experience of the war and its aftermath. A number of them gave voice to the need for a world order free from political and social conflict and all over Europe veterans imagined a third way between capitalist liberalism and state-controlled socialism. By doing so, many of them moved towards emerging fascist movements and became in some cases unwillingly the heralds of totalitarian dictatorships.
