During colonial times the Egyptian novel invoked a sovereign nation state and basked in its perceived unity After independence the novel began to profess disenchantment with state practices and unequal class and gender relations but did not disrupt the nation's imagined homogeneity The twenty first century Egyptian novel by contrast shatters this singular view with the rise of a new consciousness that presents Egypt as fundamentally diverse This new consciousness responds to discourses of difference and practices of differentiation within the contexts of race religion class gender sexuality and language It also heralds the cacophony of voices that collectively cried for social justice from Tahrir Square Through a robust analysis of several new consciousness novels by award winning authors the book highlights their unconventional yet coherent undertakings to foreground the marginal experiences of the Nubian Amazigh Bedouin Coptic Jewish women and sexual minority populations in Egypt The Novels of Matteo Bandello Matteo Bandello, 1890 Novels Charles James
