The Country of the Pointed Firs Sarah Orne Jewett, 2017-07-30 How is this book unique Font adjustments however its structure is unified through both setting and theme The novel can be read as a study of the effects of isolation and hardship experienced by the inhabitants of the decaying fishing villages along the Maine coast Sarah Orne Jewett who wrote the book when she was 47 was largely responsible for popularizing the regionalism genre with her sketches of the fictional Maine fishing village of Dunnet Landing Like Jewett the narrator is a woman a writer unattached genteel in demeanor intermittently feisty and zealously protective of her time to write The narrator removes herself from her landlady's company and writes in an empty schoolhouse but she also continues to spend a great deal of time with Mrs Todd befriending her hostess and her hostess's family and friends Plot The narrator a Bostonian returns after a brief visit a few summers prior to the small coastal town of Dunnet Maine in order to finish writing her book Upon arriving she settles in with Almira Todd a widow in her sixties and the local apothecary and herbalist The narrator occasionally assists Mrs Todd with her frequent callers but this distracts her from her writing and she seeks a room of her own Renting an empty schoolhouse with a broad view of Dunnet Landing the narrator can apparently concentrate on her writing although Jewett does not use the schoolhouse to show the narrator at work but rather in meditation and receiving company The schoolhouse is one of many locations in the novel which Jewett elevates to mythic significance and for the narrator the location is a center of writerly consciousness from which she makes journeys out and to which others make journeys in aware of the force of the narrator's presence out of curiosity and out of respect for Almira Todd After a funeral Captain Littlepage an 80 year old retired sailor comes to the schoolhouse to visit the narrator because he knows Mrs Todd He tells a story about his time on the sea and she is noticeably bored so he begins to leave She sees that she has offended him with her display of boredom so she covers her tracks by asking him to tell her more of his story The Captain's story cannot compare to the stories that Mrs Todd Mrs Todd's brother and mother and residents of Dunnet tell of their lives in Dunnet The narrator's friendship with Mrs Todd strengthens over the course of the summer and the narrator's appreciation of the Maine coastal town increases each day
