Dying Child:

The Dying Child William M. Easson, 1972      Give Sorrow Words Dorothy Judd, 2018-05-01 Though there has been much written about dying and bereavement in recent years the particular stress of terminal illness in childhood as it affects both the families and the professionals is only beginning to be better understood In this book Dorothy Judd a child psychotherapist who has worked with ill disabled and dying children and adolescents for many years places her clinical experience in the context of a full understanding of death the moral and ethical issues raised by some of the treatments for life threatening illness and the current research into new developments in approaches to terminal illness At the heart of the book is a very moving diary of Judd s work with Robert a seven year old suffering from leukaemia Judd s account of therapeutic work in the hospital setting away from the privacy of the consulting room will be of special interest to mental health professionals Give Sorrow Words combines great sensitivity to the experience of terminal illness with an astute awareness of the more theoretical debates in this increasingly important area of research      Care of the Dying Child Robert W. Buckingham, 1989      The Dying Child , 1988-08-16 English language references to multidisciplinary literature published between 1960 to 1987 Classified arrangement under broad categories i e general the young child the adolescent the family the caregivers and physical care Entries also include abstracts and indication of references Miscellaneous appendixes Author and subject indexes      Drawings from a Dying Child Judi Bertoia, 2013-04-15 Drawings from a Dying Child concerns a young girl Rachel terminally ill with leukaemia The book describes a series of drawings she made and shows how they reveal her inner experience how she became fully aware that she was dying and even came to accept death The result is a moving and informative story that will be invaluable to caregivers and families with a dying child It provides new understanding of the experience of a dying child and suggests practical strategies for coping      Drawings from a Dying Child (RLE: Jung) Judith Bertoia, 2014-07-11 Does a dying child understand death How can we help children who are dying Originally published in 1993 this book concerns a young girl Rachel terminally ill with leukaemia The book describes a series of drawings she made and shows how they reveal her inner experience how she became fully aware that she was dying and even came to accept death The result is a moving and informative story that will be invaluable to caregivers and families with a dying child It provides new understanding of the experience of a dying child and suggests practical strategies for coping      A Special Kind of Love Robert W. Buckingham, 1983      Care of the Dying Child Ann Goldman, 1994 Death in childhood is uncommon but for those families who have to confront the situation the burden is great The stress and anxiety for health care workers is also considerable This book considers the medical psycho social and practical issues involved in caring for children dying from chronic disease It is directed towards pediatricians family doctors and other professionals who may be involved in caring for terminally ill children and their families whether at home or in hospital      A Dying Child in the Family John Said, 1986 Children and adolescents have different understandings of death For the baby death is equated with separation For toddlers grief occurs when they realize the person is not returning The preschool child who tends to live in the present with no clear concept of past or future will not understand the finality Around ages 4 and 5 death is often personified as a boogie man Eventually by the age of 6 or 7 children have developed a clear understanding of death very similar to that of adults Children and adolescents experience of a sibling's death usually includes sensations of somatic distress intense preoccupation with the image of the deceased person strong feelings of guilt loss of warmth towards others and disorientation Later adjustment problems of children and adolescents whose sibling had died include guilt that they should have died too and distorted concepts of illness and death Parents have reported that these events were helpful in adjustment to the death having knowledge of the diagnosis and the likely fatal outcome participating in the patient's care having the opportunity to say good bye in the terminal phase having the sibling die at home seeing the dead body attending the funeral or cremation by choice being given some of the patient's possessions and previously experiencing the death of a close relative or pet ABL The Dying Child Jo-Eileen Gyulay,1978 The Dying Child Kristine Henriksen Garroway,2025 The death of a child is perhaps the most painful heartbreaking and seemingly unnatural experience we have the displeasure of living with Yet it is difficult to say with certainty whether or not this sentiment was shared by the inhabitants of ancient Israel Many studies have explored death in ancient societies by examining types of burial burial rites biblical notions of death and the afterlife care for the dead even cults of the dead yet no single study has been devoted to children and death in ancient Israel The study of childhood death is tightly entwined with the concerns of a field that is relatively new to the scholarship of ancient Israel personhood An exploration of the concept of personhood is needed in the context of childhood death In The Dying Child Kristine Henriksen Garroway argues for a stronger position of the child in current archeological trends Many archaeologists hesitate to ascribe various domestic objects to children despite their obvious presence in the ancient home This functionally ignores an entire class of people in the study of death In acknowledging the personhood of children in burials and other deathly rituals Garroway considers emotional and personal aspects of ancient Israeli life filling a critical gap in our understanding of this culture Home Care for the Dying Child Ida Marie Martinson,1976 What Do We Tell the Children? Joseph M. Primo,2013-09-17 One out of seven children will lose a parent before they are 20 The statistics are sobering but they are also a call for preparedness However pastors and counselors of all types are often at a loss when dealing with a grieving child Talking to adults about death and grief is difficult it's all the more challenging to talk to children and teens The stakes are high grieving children are high risk for substance abuse promiscuity depression isolation and suicide Yet despite this most of these kids grow up to be normal or exceptional adults But their chance to become healthy adults increases with the support of a loving community Supporting grieving children requires intentionality open communication and patience Rather than avoid all conversations on death or pretend like it never happened normalizing grief and offering support requires us to be in tune with kids through dialogue as they grapple with questions of how and why When listening to children in grief we often have to embrace the mystery offer love and compassion and stick with the basics The author says We don t have to answer the why and how for them but we can assure our children that God is with us as we suffer We can do so by doing good for others and pointing out all of those moments when someone has done something good for us I believe that most of the time that s as far as we will get and that is okay
