Advances In World Archaeology Volume 4 1985:

Foraging and Farming David R. Harris, Gordon C. Hillman, 2014-10-30 This book is one of a series of more than 20 volumes resulting from the World Archaeological Congress September 1986 attempting to bring together not only archaeologists and anthropologists from many parts of the world as well as academics from contingent disciplines but also non academics from a wide range of cultural backgrounds This volume develops a new approach to plant exploitation and early agriculture in a worldwide comparative context It modifies the conceptual dichotomy between hunter gatherers and farmers viewing human exploitation of plant resources as a global evolutionary process which incorporated the beginnings of cultivation and crop domestication The studies throughout the book come from a worldwide range of geographical contexts from the Andes to China and from Australia to the Upper Mid West of North America This work is of interest to anthropologists archaeologists botanists and geographers Originally published 1989 Human Impact on Ancient Environments Charles L. Redman, 1999-10 Threats to biodiversity food shortages urban sprawl lessons for environmental problems that confront us today may well be found in the past The archaeological record contains hundreds of situations in which societies developed long term sustainable relationships with their environments and thousands in which the relationships were destructive Charles Redman demonstrates that much can be learned from an improved understanding of peoples who through seemingly rational decisions degraded their environments and threatened their own survival By discussing archaeological case studies from around the world from the deforestation of the Mayan lowlands to soil erosion in ancient Greece to the almost total depletion of resources on Easter Island Redman reveals the long range coevolution of culture and environment and clearly shows the impact that ancient peoples had on their world These case studies focus on four themes habitat transformation and animal extinctions agricultural practices urban growth and the forces that accompany complex society They show that humankind's commitment to agriculture has had cultural consequences that have conditioned our perception of the environment and reveal that societies before European contact did not necessarily live the utopian existences that have been popularly supposed Whereas most books on this topic tend to treat human societies as mere reactors to environmental stimuli Redman's volume shows them to be active participants in complex and evolving ecological relationships Human Impact on Ancient Environments demonstrates how archaeological research can provide unique insights into the nature of human stewardship of the Earth and can permanently alter the way we think about humans and the environment Journal of Ancient Civilizations, 1992 Books in Print, 1994 Black Writers Sharon Malinowski, 1994 This text presents comprehensive coverage of more than 400 of the most studied black authors from the Harlem Renaissance social and political activists and foreign black writers of interest to American Audiences Critical Traditions in Contemporary Archaeology Valerie Pinsky, Alison Wylie, 1989 Late Woodland Societies Thomas E. Emerson, Dale L. McElrath, Andrew C. Fortier, 2000-01-01 Archaeologists across the Midwest have pooled their data and perspectives to produce this indispensable volume on the Native cultures of the Late Woodland period approximately A D 300-1000. Sandwiched between the well known Hopewellian and Mississippian eras of monumental mound construction, the Late Woodland period has received insufficient attention from archaeologists who have frequently characterized it as consisting of relatively drab artifact assemblages. The close connections between this period and subsequent Mississippian and Fort Ancient societies however make it especially valuable for cross cultural researchers. Understanding the cultural processes at work during the Late Woodland period will yield important clues about the long term forces that stimulate and enhance social inequality. Late Woodland Societies is notable for its comprehensive geographic coverage, exhaustive presentation and discussion of sites, artifacts and prehistoric cultural practices, and critical summaries of interpretive perspectives and trends in scholarship. The vast amount of information and theory brought together, examined and synthesized by the contributors produces a detailed, coherent and systematic picture of Late Woodland lifestyles across the Midwest. The Late Woodland can now be seen as a dynamic time in its own right and instrumental to the emergence of complex late prehistoric cultures across the Midwest and Southeast.

Ploes Nikolaos Chr Stampolidēs, Vassos Karageorghis, 2003 Scientific American, 1987 Monthly magazine devoted to topics of general scientific interest Mountain Research and Development, 1993 HarperCollins Past Worlds Atlas of Archaeology, 1999 Chuska Chronologies, Houses, and Hogans: Analysis (2 pts.) Jonathan Damp, 1999 Simbol boga i kralja, 2006 The Oxford Encyclopedia of Archaeology in the Near East, 1997 This comprehensive five volume work analyzes the archaeological and linguistic data that pertain to the broad cultural milieu of the ancient Near East, the crossroads of three of the world's most influential religions: Judaism, Christianity, and Islam. Ranging from prehistoric times up to the early centuries of the rise of Islam, the work covers the civilizations of Syria, Palestine, Mesopotamia, Anatolia, Iran, Arabia, Cyprus, Egypt, and the coastal regions of North and East Africa. It includes 1,125 alphabetically arranged entries on sites, languages, material culture, archaeological methods, organizations and institutions, and major excavators and scholars of the field. This one-of-a-kind accessibly written reference brings new breadth to the study of archaeology in the biblical world, making it a valuable resource not only to scholars and students of archaeology but also to those with an interest in ancient art and architecture, languages, history, and religion.
