

Echoes

Late-born and woman-souled I dare not hope,
The freshness of the elder lays, the might
Of manly, modern passion shall alight
Upon my Muse's lips, nor may I cope
(Who veiled and screened by womanhood must grope)
With the world's strong-armed warriors and recite
The dangers, wounds, and triumphs of the fight;
Twanging the full-stringed lyre through all its scope.
But if thou ever in some lake-floored cave

O'erbrowed by rocks, a wild voice wooed and heard,
Answering at once from heaven and earth and wave,
Lending elf-music to thy harshest word,
Misprize thou not these echoes that belong
To one in love with solitude and song.

What Have You Done to Our Ears to Make Us Hear Echoes? Arlene Kim, 2011 WINNER OF THE AMERICAN BOOK AWARD In her stunning debut poetry collection What have you done to our ears to make us hear echoes Arlene Kim confronts the ways in which language mythologizes memory and thus exiles us from our own true histories Juxtaposing formal choices and dreamlike details Kim explores the entangled myths that accompany the experience of immigration the abandoned country known only through stories the new country into which the immigrant family must wander ever deeper and the forked paths where these narratives meet and diverge Sharing ground with Randall Jarrell s later poems and drawing on a dizzying array of sources including Grimm s Fairy Tales Korean folklore Turkish proverbs Paul Celan Anna Akhmatova Antonin Dvorak s letters and the numerous fictions we script across the inscrutabilities of the natural world Kim reveals how a homesickness for the self is universal It is this persistent and incurable longing that drives us as we make our way through the dark woods of our lives following what might or might not be a trail of breadcrumbs discovering finally that we are the only path

Stefano,2019-03-07 At the tender age of ninety my dearest wish has been to publish my remaining poems before I depart this world and so register my name on the list of published poets thus avoiding my life s work disappearing in the mists of time My grandmother on my father s side wrote poetry so I guess I inherited from her this wonderful gift Unfortunately she didn t publish her work so when she died her poems died with her Sadly I didn t get the chance or opportunity to read any of her work What a loss So dear reader I trust you may enjoy the words of my heart mind and soul Happy reading Echoes from the Earth Steve Cavin,2007 Echoes Anne-Marie Veis,1980 Echoes Beth Stanger,1994 A Hundred Echoes

Gerardus Baron Von Sachsen,2025-06-14 A Hundred Echoes Poems Inspired by Art s Great Works by Gerardus Baron von Sachsen What does Rothko whisper when the room is silent What happens when Plath rides with G ricault s dead What if Duchamp s urinal stares back and judges In A Hundred Echoes poet and world traveller Gerardus Baron von Sachsen crafts an extraordinary collection of one hundred poems each inspired by a singular work of art that shaped human culture From prehistoric cave paintings to postmodern performance pieces from marble gods to looping minimalism this book is both an intimate love letter to art and a searing reckoning with what it reveals Each poem is more than a reflection it is a transformation These works are not confined to museums cathedrals or dusty catalogues they are pulled into flesh and breath sound and blood Whether confronting the raw horror of Goya the quiet resilience of Dorothea Lange s mother or the infinite recursion of Kusama s mirror rooms the poet does not stand back He steps in This is a book for readers who love poetry but also for those who love painting sculpture music film and myth It is a collection where Michelangelo s David meets Bukowski s sweat Billie Holiday s Strange Fruit becomes scripture Rothko s void hums with unspoken names Plath s Ariel gallops through colour and collapse And the scream behind Bacon s Pope is no longer silent The book is structured chronologically across 10 themed chapters guiding the reader from prehistory to the digital age You will walk through ancient temples Renaissance chapels modernist shockwaves and contemporary voids Each chapter offers not just a glimpse into art but a poetic portal into the century it came from the hunger the desire the violence the faith Baron von Sachsen writes in a voice that is sharp yet lyrical metaphysical yet grounded His tone is deeply human sometimes tender often fierce always honest Echoes of Charles Bukowski Federico Garc a Lorca Carlos Drummond de Andrade and Sylvia Plath ring through these pages And yet the voice remains distinctly his own global haunted curious and unafraid A Hundred Echoes is both a standalone poetry collection and a silent museum It can be read from start to finish or entered randomly like a gallery of rooms without doors For the artist the lover the seeker the skeptic the tired soul still listening for beauty this book was

Echoes Corin Bryant,2015-09-24 These four collections represent the sum total of my writing experience I have produced them here in chronological order as I find the trajectory of artistic development alongside the evolution of style is as intriguing as the poems themselves The Tower In My Town is my first collection and is tinged with the bleak timbre of a depressive mindset My style is unrefined and raw and I still find it haunting In Clarity was written as I had something of a dynamic awakening of spirit and as such reflects a brighter mood albeit written during a very difficult time I experiment a little with styles and free form and it is my most sincere and honest work to date Heartbeats was written as an ode to the elation and joy of romantic Love and wild hope I try to develop my own style and employ reckless use of enjambment and half rhyme to evoke a manic joyous euphoria Nightmares is the polar opposite of Heartbeats and represents a return to the darkness of The Tower but with a renewed energy and stylistic refinement Rather than the bleak submission to a depressive mindset this collection is the acknowledgement and embrace of the dark energy that fills my thoughts I hope you enjoy this collection as much as I have enjoyed living it
