The Mass Audience James Webster, Patricia F. Phalen, 2013-11-05 In the early 20th century a new and distinctive concept of the audience rose to prominence The audience was seen as a mass a large collection of people mostly unknown to one another that was unified through exposure to media This construct offered a pragmatic way to map audiences that was relevant to industry government and social theorists In a relatively short period of time it became the dominant model for studying the audience Today it is so pervasive that most people simply take it for granted Recently media scholars have reopened inquiry into the meaning of audience They question the utility of the mass audience concept characterizing it as insensitive to differences among audience members inescapably bound up with discredited notions of mass society or serving only a narrow set of industrial interests The authors of this volume find that these assertions are often false and unwarranted either by the historical record or by contemporary industry practice Instead they argue for a rediscovery of the dominant model by summarizing and critiquing the very considerable body of literature on audience behavior and by demonstrating different ways of analyzing mass audiences Further they provide a framework for understanding the future of the audience in the new media environment and suggest how the concept of mass audience can illuminate research on media effects cultural studies and media policy

Advertising to Children M. Carole Macklin, Les Carlson, 1999-07-16 Children represent a valuable target audience for advertisers with over 200 billion in direct purchases and influenced spending However questions exist about both the effectiveness of marketing to children as well as the impact this advertising has on the children themselves Current debates over smoking and alcohol consumption highlight this issue from all perspectives marketers parents and policymakers Advertising to Children presents cutting edge research designed to stimulate and inform this debate Well known authors contribute their perspectives with chapters organized in sections to address what children know and think about advertising how advertising works with children and what issues are at the forefront of societal and public policy thinking Editors M Carole Macklin and Les Carlson have lead research in this field and lend their expertise More than just a litany of hot topics this book provides a wide angle lens on the field with insights from advertising marketing communication and psychology Media Entertainment Dolf Zillmann, Peter Vorderer, 2000-05 This collection of essays covers all essential aspects of media entertainment written in a non technical style for appeal to scholars in communication and psychology as well as to students at mid to advanced levels of study Television, a Guide to the Literature Mary B. Cassata, Thomas Skill, 1985 Recording for the Blind & Dyslexic, ... Catalog of Books ,1996 Broadcast Writing Roger L. Walters, 1988 Proceedings of the ... Conference of the American Academy of Advertising American Academy of Advertising. Conference, 2005 Ratings Analysis James G. Webster, Lawrence Wilson Lichty, 1991 When one hears or reads the term ratings one often thinks of television or radio programs competing for an audience However the picture is much larger than that People working in advertising and the electronic media are well aware of the significance of ratings data Students considering careers in media such as broadcasting and journalism are compelled to study the process and results of audience ratings However in Ratings Analysis Theory and Practice Webster and Lichty exemplify the many ways in which ratings can be vital to other vocations such as social scientists interested in mass communication and media policymakers The book not only covers the many applications of ratings data but also delves into the means by which the data are collected and finally how the data should be analyzed The authors have made an effort to keep the language understandable for a large range of potential readers A Feasibility Study--delivering Cooperative Extension Programming Via Cable Television Charlene Fisher Baxter, 1982 Subject Catalog Library of Congress, 1982 Broadcasting & Cable ,2009-07 Subject Guide to Books in Print ,1997
