

When a top-secret South border carrying ten nuclear warheads crashes and burns in the Utah desert, an Air Force search team makes the shocking discovery that the plane has opened and the nukes are gone. They face a Broken Arrow - the military code name for a lost nuclear weapon.

This critically acclaimed suspense thriller brings to action film screen the talents of two action legends John Travolta (John Travenzo) and Christian Slater (The Sergeant) with world renowned producer action director John Woo (The Killers, Hard Rain). The result is a non-stop nuclear powered thriller with some of the most exciting pulse-pounding action sequences ever captured on film.

Regimented Air Force pilot - Major Vic Deaton (Travolta) has stolen the warheads, and is totally prepared to leaving a major American city if the government doesn't pay his price. Only his former Air Force buddy, Captain Billy Wade (Slater), knows how well enough to stop him.

As the clock ticks towards ground zero, Wade is left to his wits and unorthodox plan to stop the nuclear plane. How to Make An American Quilt (The American Revolution). Together, they brave high speed truck chases, flaming jet bombers, aerial assaults by helicopters and even air-riding-golfing over ground nuclear explosions. It's a non-stop heart-pounding high-octane, highly motivated Deaton from carrying out his treason plan of nuclear terror.

John Woo has inspired his special brand of high velocity filmmaking into a masterpiece of cinematic grandeur, full-throttle adventure, bringing yourself in and present in the battlefield - in BROKEN ARROW launches you over the edge of excitement.

"SHOOTING" THE ARROW

That's a military term. For a few nuclear warheads actually exists in story format. Even more engineering in the film than it actually did happen - and get just over. Sensational Quartz Net (Speed) found an impression for the BROKEN ARROW event.

play in true life events, such as the 1987 sinking of a nuclear submarine with two nuclear warheads aboard and a B-1 bomber that crashed in the Mediterranean. In both cases, the warheads were never recovered.

John Woo's films are renowned for their cinematic complex, high intensity moments and BROKEN ARROW was no exception. Over 60,000 rounds of ammunition were fired during the making of the film. In true Woo style, each actor was assigned a weapon specially suited to their character. For example, a wood-grip Barrett machine gun that fired 1,200 rounds a minute proved to be an elegant yet lethal weapon for John Travolta's Vic Deaton. In addition, two customized sniper's rifles, each complete with a special sniper's grip, stainless steel barrel, Red Ring, red dot laser and high-tech night vision scope were specially built for the film valued at about $24,000 apiece, they are the only ones in existence.

For the spectacular dramatic sequence in an abandoned copper mine, a complete interior modeling of the great mine, used for the exterior in southern Arizona, was built in an airplane hangar-sized sound stage at Twentieth Century Fox Studios. Fully equipped with a working freight elevator and an underground mine, the set also featured special break-away sections that could be silently maneuvered during shooting, giving director Woo complete freedom of movement while filming his trademark, high-powered gun battles in a seemingly confined space.

Many elements of the astounding, unprecedented helicopter and train sequences as well as all of the B-1 bomber bomber (an imaginative extension of the U.S. Air Force's B-2 Stealth bomber) flying sequences, were accomplished through special effects wizardry - including model vehicles and landscapes, and blue and green screen compositing to combine the live action and miniature elements, computer animation and motion control photography.

Having two athletic stars in the leading roles proved to be a tremendous asset. For the film's electrifying finish, Slater's character had to pull himself along the underside of a speeding train. Realizing that today's sophisticated audience would know if he faked it, Slater insisted on doing the incredibly dangerous stunt himself - adding a powerful degree of realism to the trademark genre, adrenaline action for which John Woo's films are world famous.
