

KOBOLD Luziabyrussaurus Fugivorus

ANIMAL - SUBTERRANEAN GLOWING FUNGIVORE

The most well known species of the subterranean fauna of the new world, also called "fairy-goats", the Kobolds are bipedal reptiles that live in large hive-like groups called flocks, and take shelter in numbers against predators of their alien environment.

They're relatively small animals, reaching a maximum height of approximately 3 feet. What they lack in size, they make up in intelligence and speed.

Bioluminescent
lumbar membranes

These curious creatures seem to have developed a mutualistic relationship with a peculiar species of glowing mushrooms, the Sorrowful Bride. They are able to neutralize the fungi's otherwise deadly toxin in their stomach, and make them the main part of their diet. While the mushroom's main body is digested, the spores aren't. Eventually these spores are released and grow new fungi through the animal's feces. The bioluminescent enzymes are somehow redirected to the Kobold's Lumbar Membranes.

Their bioluminescent membranes are used for long distance communication and to temporarily blind predators. In recent observations I could ascertain that these creatures are capable of doing a large range of different patterns and intensities of glowing flashes, which indicates they have a rather complex language for non-sapient beings.

Perhaps the most fascinating aspect of the Kobold species is their hives, were they nest and seek shelter. Often called "castles" or "lighthouses", hundreds of Kobolds work together to raise these magnificent structures from the ground, sticking thousands of stones in place using a cement-like substance they regurgitate. These castles can become so tall that some of them connect the cave's ceiling to the ground.

A Bestiary:

The Epistemology of the Monstrous in the Middle Ages Lisa Verner, 2005-01-07 This book studies the phenomena of monsters and marvels from the time of Pliny the Elder through the 14th century

Performing Desire Elizabeth Eva Leach, Jonathan Morton, 2025-06-15 Performing Desire examines the intellectual and philosophical complexity of a monument of medieval literature the mid thirteenth century Bestiaire d'amours of Richard de Fournival Although the Bestiaire was recognized in its time as significant as evinced by numerous surviving manuscript copies and its influence on other literary works modern scholarship has tended to neglect it Performing Desire remedies this omission by detailing the contributions of the Bestiaire to medieval literature and thought Attending to the phenomenology psychology and philosophy of Fournival's Bestiaire Elizabeth Eva Leach and Jonathan Morton reconsider the work as a literary experiment that explores erotic desire and the construction of a self Leach and Morton further show that the Bestiaire is as much a meditation on sound and performance as it is a study of desire Synthesizing methods from musicology literary studies and manuscript studies Leach and Morton consider the complex and hybridized workings of text image sound and cues for performance in the surviving manuscripts of the Bestiaire Through their analysis Leach and Morton find that the distinctive aspect of the Bestiaire's philosophical method is its self-conscious status as a performance between the oral and the literary the voice and the page It is this aspect they contend that left such a mark on the medieval European tradition of philosophical fiction In Performing Desire Richard de Fournival's hybrid text emerges as one of the most philosophically sophisticated and important works of medieval literature not only in French but in any language

A Bestiary Boynton Merrill, 1976 These original poems describe in a manner at once allusive and concrete a number of common animals The creatures in Mr Merrill's bestiary reflect upon the world and their places in it They speak of their fears conceits triumphs and disappointments Mr Merrill speaks of the raccoon who Teaches its foolish children To know they take communion When they wash their food in water of the mole I am not sure that I have eyes But I have never wept of the stallion Who hates with lifted head He records the firefly I was wiped into a comet Across the face of childhood the nighthawk I weave sunset fabric Out of thunderheads the moth I don't know why I love Dim light and the crow The other birds are idiots This volume is not however a random collection of animal poems rather it presents the reflections of 28 separate personalities which merge into a single statement Each of the animals represented in these poems is handsomely illustrated in an original line and wash drawing by Robert James Foose a well-known Kentucky artist to spell in a world where magic must be written in order to work gifted young wizard Nicodemus experiences disturbing dreams in the wake of an ancient demon's murderous campaign that suggests that Nicodemus's spelling problem may be related to a curse

Animal Capital Nicole Shukin, 2009 The juxtaposition of biopolitical critique and animal studies two subjects seldom theorized together signals the double edged intervention of Animal Capital Nicole Shukin pursues a resolutely materialist engagement with the question of the animal challenging the philosophical idealism that has dogged the question by tracing how the politics of capital and of animal life impinge on one another in market cultures of the twentieth and early twenty first centuries

The Architect's Dream Sean Pickersgill, 2023-09-29 Sean Pickersgill demonstrates that the goal of creating meaningful architecture can take a variety of critical and philosophical paths The importance of architecture as an expression of broad complex social drivers is complemented by the equally popular idea that architecture as an intellectual pursuit retains its own autonomy as a self referential culture This book uniquely places the emphasis for innovation in architecture within the domain of critical thinking generally and a specific understanding of the semantics of built form The book draws on a broad range of subject areas from film to philosophy to anthropology to mathematics and economics to show that the path to meaningful creative practice is always based in an understanding of the principal drivers for change and meaning in society It is not a simple recipe book or workshop manual for others to reproduce It requires the engaged reader to employ their own creative abilities to find what potential lies in each of the propositions and it will encourage the scholastic architect to continue to mine the rich veins of intellectual culture to demonstrate the latent purposiveness inherent in all meaningful architecture
