

CHAPTER 8; ORGANIZATIONAL LEADERSHIP

• Organizational Leadership

In organizational leadership, leaders help set strategic goals for the organization while motivating individuals within the organization to successfully carry out assignments in order to realize those goals. In the school setting, the school leader helps set the goals/targets for the school and motivates teachers, parents, learners, non-teaching personnel and other members of the community to do their task to realize the school goals.

- Organizational leadership works towards what is best for individual members and what is best for the organization as a group at the same time. Organizational leadership does not sacrifice the individual members for the sake of the people nor sacrifice the welfare of the group for the sake of individual members. Both individual and group are necessary.

Leadership Versus Management

- Are leadership and management synonymous? Is a leader a manager or is a manager a leader? If I am a good leader, does it follow that I am also a good manager? Or if I am a good manager, am I at the same time a good leader?
