Stepsons of Light Eugene Manlove Rhodes, 2019-12-13

In Stepsons of Light Eugene Manlove Rhodes crafts a rich tapestry of American life in the early 20th century blending vivid prose with lyrical descriptions that evoke the spirit of the New Mexico landscape. The novel reflects Rhodes' fascination with the rugged individualism of the American West, exploring themes of identity, resilience, and the interplay between man and nature. With a narrative style reminiscent of early American writers, Rhodes captures the complexities of human emotion against the backdrop of a rapidly changing society, infusing the text with a sense of both nostalgia and profound insight.

Eugene Manlove Rhodes, born in 1869 in a frontier town, was deeply influenced by his experiences growing up amidst the turbulent socio-cultural landscape of the West. His firsthand encounters with ranch life and Native American cultures imbue his characters with authenticity and depth as he navigates the moral dilemmas faced by individuals in a burgeoning nation. A passionate advocate for the Southwest, Rhodes channels his love for the region into a narrative that celebrates both its beauty and its hardships. Readers who appreciate a nuanced portrayal of the American spirit through compelling storytelling will find Stepsons of Light an invaluable addition to their literary collection. Rhodes invites us on a journey not only through the physical landscapes of the West but also through the complexities of the human heart, making this novel a poignant exploration of light and shadow in our lives.

From Alibris: Tularosa, sun scorched, sandblasted, merciless, the parched desert where everything from cactus to cowboy carries a weapon of some sort and the only creatures who sleep with both eyes closed are dead. Tularosa, the last frontier in the continental United States. C. L. Sonnichsen, an authority on the Southwest, writing from primary records and conversations with survivors of Tularosa's pioneer days, tells the stories of the great cattle ranchers pitted against daring rustlers, elite men against Apaches, desperados against lawmen. Here are Oliver Lee, Pat Garrett, and Bill McNew. And here is the feud between Col. A. J. Fountain and Albert Fall. Sonnichsen has updated his history for this new edition with a revised final chapter bringing the drama of Tularosa and
