A SINGULAR COUNTRY

A Singular Country is J. P. Donleavy's idiosyncratic and personal view of Ireland told in the vernacular of the Irishman which he has nearly, but not quite, become. "A country where the dead are forever living and which is at once magical, illogical, mysterious and infuriating—a land that is mostly, and perhaps always will remain, a condition of the mind in which dreams can be your only reality." The New York City-born author assumes the right to speak of his adopted country from his own struggles and early turmoil within its shores and from his "descent on both parental sides from peasant backgrounds as he took into the country as anyone can relate or remember."

J. P. Donleavy brings to vivid life the range of Ireland's people. From the small farmer to the landed aristocrat, from the Anglo-Irish in their crumbling mansions to the "gombeen-men erecting their emporiums of vulgarity." Priests, politicians, saints, scholars—none escape his pointed pen. Modern Ireland is unveiled with a mixture of genius and hilarity that only Donleavy can muster.

J. P. Donleavy was born in New York City in 1926 and educated there. Following service in the U.S. Navy in World War II, he attended Trinity College, Dublin, and remained in Ireland between 1946 and 1951, finally returning in 1959. Author of some fourteen books, including The Ginger Man, The Beauty Boatwales of Balbharran R., and A Singular Man, he is also a highly regarded painter. He makes his home on the shores of Lough Ouel in County Westmeath.
