Sterba,1954 Based largely on letters documents and other source material the Sterbas book reveals a side of Beethoven s nature that was hinted at but never made explicit in previous biographies Many readers may be shocked by the authors theory about the uncle nephew relationship maternal filial rather than homosexual but even those who cannot go along with their conclusions must admit that they have produced a well written fascinating and in many ways wholly believable case study which helps to explain many of the inconsistencies in Beethoven s character and in no way detracts from his unparalleled musical achievement

Beethoven Henry Edward Krehbiel, 1898      Archduke Rudolph, Beethoven's Patron, Pupil, and Friend Susan Kagan, 1988 In early 19th century Austria the Archduke Rudolph occupied multiple roles a noble Hapsburg by birth a Cardinal Archbishop by career and a dedicated musician by avocation A talented pianist and composer Archduke Rudolph enjoyed the unique privilege of being Beethoven's only composition student and in the two decades of studying with him produced a sizable and well crafted body of music for piano chamber ensemble and voice Many of the Archduke's autograph manuscripts were corrected in detail by Beethoven giving us fascinating insights into Beethoven's thinking on the structure and syntax of music This comprehensive book surveys Archduke Rudolph's life and career in music which also encompasses his significant role as music patron and collector It is based on a study of primary sources principally the autograph manuscripts of his compositions and sketches and most importantly Beethoven's own autographs including sketches corrections on the Rudolph manuscripts and a four measure theme composed expressly for Rudolph's use produced here in facsimile for the first time Other primary sources examined include the Archduke's correspondence with Beethoven and members of the Imperial household the catalogues of Rudolph's music collection and documents related to his ecclesiastical career The thematic catalogue of Archduke Rudolph's music lists all of his finished and unfinished works in chronological order as well as sketches copies and transcriptions Fifty illustrations and 190 musical examples are also provided
