Keeping Things Close: Essays on the Conservative Disposition Peter King, 2015-06-11 We do not love what we do not know We love what is close to us the people objects and memories and do so because they matter most to us We trust the things that are familiar and seek to nurture and protect them Our lives are habitual based on routine They have meaning because of regularity the continuity of known faces and the ability to exclude others We depend on a few others who we are committed to and who are committed to us We wish to include them in our lives to be included by them and to do this we have to be able to exclude others This book presents a particular vision of conservatism one that is primarily concerned with just carrying on for continuing as we are Most of us most of the time live quiet and ordinary lives and are quite happy that we do We do not experience great upheaval or flux nor do we wish to We do not relish unpredictability and when it does come we hope it is the exception rather than the rule Likewise we are not habitual rule breakers We are happy to play the game by the rules We simply want to lead our lives care for our loved ones and be able to set our own goals The essays in this book show how we are able to make sense of a complex world consisting largely of strangers who being already preoccupied with their own matters have little time for us And the fact that they generally ignore us makes our lives possible We are nurtured by those things we are able to keep close
