

Curriculum Approaches in Scotland and England:

Scotland

The Scottish education system has its own distinct curriculum known as the Curriculum for Excellence (CfE). CfE focuses on general education for children and young people aged 3-18, with an emphasis on interdisciplinary learning, flexibility, and a holistic approach.

England

In England, the National Curriculum sets out the subjects and content to be taught in schools. The curriculum is divided into key stages, and there is a more prescriptive approach to subject content compared to the Curriculum for Excellence in Scotland.
