Chinese Export Porcelains Andrew D Madsen, Carolyn White, 2017-07-28 The blue and white porcelain exported by China in the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries is an important category of artifacts and antiques a fashion sensitive commodity that was affected by the ebbs and flows of style and consumer demand In this copiously illustrated comprehensive guide to Chinese export porcelain Andrew Madsen offers both a broad overview and detailed identification and context information for the most common styles and motifs His focus on the determination of manufacture dates which are based primarily on data collected from armorial decorated export wares porcelain cargoes from dated shipwrecks and tightly dated archaeological contexts will allow students scholars and collectors to refine associations with Chinese export porcelain revealing the untapped quantity of information that mass produced Chinese export porcelain has to offer Jingdezhen to the World Teresa Canepa, 2019 This lavishly illustrated book celebrates one of the most comprehensive and meticulously assembled private collections of Chinese export porcelain from the late Ming dynasty 1368 1644 made at Jingdezhen in Jiangxi province The Lurie Collection comprising about 170 porcelain pieces contains examples that are exceptional not only for their aesthetic beauty and quality but also for their rarity or historical importance This book makes a significant contribution to several fields of study most notably those related to the production design and trade of Jingdezhen export porcelain in the late 16th and early 17th centuries An introduction places the diverse porcelains of the Lurie Collection in their historical context It offers new insight into the European expansion to Asia in the late 16th and early 17th centuries via both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans which ultimately led to an unprecedented large scale trade transport and consumption of various types of Jingdezhen export porcelain throughout the world until the collapse of the Ming dynasty in 1644 The core of the book is the catalogue section which is composed of 127 entries with comprehensive discussions and images of a selection of the Lurie porcelains Whenever possible they are accompanied by images of excavated shards that originally formed part of similar porcelain pieces establishing direct links to the Jingdezhen kilns where such pieces were produced Multiple sources of evidence textual material and visual shed light on the trading networks through which these Jingdezhen porcelains circulated as well as the way in which they were acquired used and appreciated by the different societies in Europe the New World Asia and the Middle East Highlights include six kraak plates made during the Wanli reign 1573 1620 with the egret mark which is found on a small number of pieces usually of very high quality and the only known kraak armorial specifically
